Ross given 55 years in prison

CHARLESTON — Robert Ross, 23, of San Diego, Calif., a former New Madrid resident found guilty May 15 by a Circuit Court jury of felonious assault and armed robbery, was sentenced Wednesday by Judge Marshall Craig to 25 years on the assault charge and 30 years on the robbery charge, with sentences to run consecutively.

The charges against Ross stem from a Dec. 4, 1973 assault with a gun on Willie Hardin, 68, of rural New Madrid and Willie Glispie, 30, of Sikeston Route Four and the armed robbery of the D.C. Barry Grocery and Service Station near Kewanee.

Calvin Ross, 23, of St. Louis and Charles Williams, 31, of New Madrid face trial on the same charges in their change of venue cases from New Madrid County. Trial of Williams is scheduled on May 29, and Calvin Ross will also be tried in Mississippi County on June 5.

A Circuit Court jury Wednesday awarded $29,200 to Mrs. Irene Carter Thweatt of Paducah, Ky., in a personal injuries and damages suit against Elmer Fred Haefner of Imperial.

The suit against Haefner was filed in connection with an automobile accident which occurred on Highway 60 near Wyatt on Sept. 3, 1971. Haefner's car skidded on wet pavement and struck the Thweatt car in a curve. Mrs. Thweatt was driving the car and her husband, Landon Lee Thweatt, was a passenger.

In the suit, Thweatt sought damages of $25,000 and Mrs. Thweatt sought damages of $75,000.

Police raid is unfruitful

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police searching for Patricia Hearst conducted a predawn raid on a Hollywood home, startling two women who were said to match descriptions of Miss Hearst and Symbionese Liberation Army fugitive Emily Harris.

Two sleepy women in pajamas emerged as a force of 50 to 60 police leveled shotguns and tear gas rifles at the house, but police Sgt. Gene Ingram said the women had no connection with the terrorist SLA.

He said police had acted on an anonymous tip, and that one of the women matched a rough description of Mrs. Harris, who is being sought along with her husband, William, and the newspaper heiress.

Meanwhile, police and FBI agents continued without success their massive search for Miss Hearst and two Symbionese Liberation Army companions. Pleas for her to surrender increased.

"Throw away those guns!" urged the Hearst-owned San Francisco Examiner. "If you just let yourself be killed it is going to be a waste; your whole thing is going to be a waste," said a taped plea issued by Patricia's two younger sisters, Anne, 18, and Vicki, 17.

Referring to last Friday's fiery shootout in Los Angeles in which six SLA members died, Vicki said: "I just don't want that to happen to you." But she added: "I'm telling you right now the police and the FBI aren't all that sympathetic anymore. And they've taken a lot of trash from these guys (the SLA). And I just don't think they are going to sit around and take much more of it."

The search for Miss Hearst and William and Emily Harris is centered in southern California. But the rapid series of raids on suspected SLA hideouts which characterized last weekend's developments have subsided, indicating authorities may have lost the immediate trail of the three fugitives, all of whom face possible life in prison.

Felony charges including assault, robbery and kidnaping were filed Wednesday against Miss Hearst and the Harrises, a white couple the FBI has said are the last SLA members it seeks.

Meanwhile, one of Miss Hearsts' alleged victims testified for an hour Thursday as a federal grand jury opened its investigation of an April 15 SLA bank robbery in San Francisco. Police said Thomas Matthews, 18, was held captive for 12 hours last week by Miss Hearst and the Harrises when the three became involved in an alleged shoplifting attempt at a suburban Los Angeles sporting goods store.

A source close to the investigation said Matthews was a "good witness." Authorities say he told them that Miss Hearst declared she was a voluntary participant in the bank robbery in which two persons were wounded.

Poole, a U.S. attorney for Northern California from 1959 to 1970, was sharply critical of Los Angeles Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch, who said when he filed the charges against her that he believed Miss Hearst was the first kidnp victim ever to become a kidnap suspect.

Ground work laid here for area port authority

Sikeston would be one of the major beneficiaries of a regional port authority, Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, said Thursday night.

Spradling made the remark during a discussion with several area leaders who had gathered at Ramada Inn to lay ground work for a port authority.

Cape Girardeau would benefit most, Spradling said, with Sikeston close behind. He cited Sikeston as a natural location for industry attracted by the port facilities because the city has two interstate highways and two railroads.

Any community can benefit from the port authority bill, according to Charles Southern, a Caruthersville attorney.

Cities and counties located along navigable waterways have been given the power to create port authorities and port districts under a bill passed during the recently completed session of the State Legislature. Spradling and Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin, D-Hornersville, were instrumental in getting the bill through the Legislature.

Spradling said Gov. Christopher Bond has not signed the bill yet, but is expected to do so.

The bill allows port authorities to own, lease and maintain recreation facilities, terminals, terminal facilities, warehouses and any other type of port facility needed.

Locations for possible ports would include Scott County, just south of Cape Girardeau, New Madrid County and Pemiscot County. Much of the land would probably need to be filled in.

The port authority may not compete with private enterprise and is designed to foster its growth, according to Southern.

However, the bill does give the port authority the power to operate a facility or warehouse if the firm renting or buying port property defaults. The port authority may operate the property for one year and then must dispose of it.

The group discussion centered on establishing a regional port authority including the six river counties of Pemiscot, New Madrid, Mississippi, Scott, Cape Girardeau and Perry.

The regional authority would be divided into two three-county districts and the districts would be subdivided by city or county authorities.

It will cost at least $50,000 to establish a three-county district, Spradling said. Funds can come through gifts, contributions and revenue bonds.

Under the bill, gifts from individuals are tax deductible. In addition, cities can contribute funds to get the port started.

Once the port authority is begun, facilities can be constructed with financing

3 break-ins investigated

CHARLESTON — Three break-ins occurred sometime Thursday night or early today on East Marshall Street and are being investigated by police.

A break-in at Ponder Chevrolet and Buick Co., 1010 E. Marshall St., was discovered about 7 a.m. today by Don Hequembourg, shop foreman. A metal door facing was pryed back, allowing the door to open, to get into the building, where a company cutting torch was used to open the safe. Approximately $247 was taken from a safe and vending machine in the building.

At 7:27 a.m., a break-in at Charleston Farm Store, 902 E. Marshal St., was reported by Manager Rene DeKriek. No signs of forcible entry were discovered. About $35 in cash and three chain saws valued at $579.85 were stolen.

Kenneth Walker, manager of B & H Auto Supply Inc., 810 E. Marshall St., reported a break-in to police at 7:40 a.m. A window on the west side of the building was pryed open to get inside, and tools valued at $1,151.22, plus $24 in pennies, were taken.

Thurman bound over on possession charge

CHARLESTON — Monty Thurman of Charleston was bound over to Circuit Court on a charge of possession of controlled substance (marijuana over 35 grams) following a preliminary hearing Thursday in Magistrate Court before Judge T. J. Brown Jr.

Thurman, who is free on $5,000 bond and scheduled to appear in Circuit Court June 11, was arrested April 26 on North Main Road in Charleston and charged after about two pounds of marijuana were found in his car.

Testifying during the preliminary were Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons and Gordon Galemore, juvenile officer and deputy sheriff.

Galemore testified he received a call about 6:30 p.m. April 26 from an unidentified person, who informed him Thurman was going to Cape Girardeau later that night to pick up a quantity of marijuana. Galemore said he notified Sheriff Simmons of the call and that later that evening he, Simmons and Deputy Sheriff Mike Baughman staked out the main entrances to town.

Galemore said he was contacted by radio by Simmons about 11:20 p.m. and informed that Thurman had been stopped on North Main Road. When he arrived at the scene, he said Thurman was handcuffed and standing outside his car.

Galemore said he saw a brown paper bag with one end partially torn open lying in the middle of the front seat. He said plastic bags were inside the brown bag and what appeared to be marijuana was inside the plastic bags.

Sheriff Simmons testified he was in the car, parked on North Main Road April 26 about 10:30 p.m., when he observed Thurman's car coming into town. He said he pursued the car and stopped Thurman in front of the Vernon Goodin home and at that time advised Thurman he was under arrest for investigation of possession of a control substance.

Simmons said Thurman at first refused to let the officers search his car but later at the sheriff's office he changed his mind and consented to having his car searched.

According to Simmons, the brown paper bag found in the front seat of Thurman's car contained two plastic bags with marijuana, which were later taken to the Southeast Missouri Crime Laboratory in Cape Girardeau for analysis.

In a trial before Judge Brown, Willis Pasley of Charleston was found guilty of common assault and fined $10, plus $20 costs. Pasley was ruled guilty of assaulting Jacob Edward Estes with his fists.

An attorney was appointed to represent Willie James (Bango) Evans of Charleston on a charge of burglary and larceny and bond was set at $2,500. Evans is accused of breaking into the home of Henry Oliver George, 109 W. Vine St., Charleston, on May 11 and stealing a .22 - caliber pistol and $200 in cash.

Larry Dale Houston of East Prairie entered a plea of guilty to a charge of possession of a controlled substance (marijuana) and was fined $100 and costs. A 30- day jail sentence will be suspended upon payment of the fine and costs by May 31 and Houston will be placed on one- year probation.

DON'T GAG
FEDERAL WORKERS

A prime lesson from the tragedies of Watergate is that a public official's first duty is to his conscience, not to his agency or boss. Unfortunately, it is a lesson that seems to have been lost on the Supreme Court which has handed down two decisions which, in effect, gag federal workers from criticizing either their bosses or their agencies.

In one vote, the court upheld a federal statute under which a federal employee can be dismissed or suspended for the vague reason of "such cause as will promote the efficiency of the service."

And in a narrow 5-4 decision, the high court ruled that the government could fire a worker without giving him a full trial- type hearing.

Now, it is no secret that the federal bureaucracy is a restful haven for too many men and women who don't earn their keep. A good bit of that deadwood could be eliminated forthwith, we are sure, with no detriment to the country whatever.

That said, however, it must be observed that many of the most flagrant cases of government waste, overspending, and other wrongdoing have come to public attention because public servants could not in good conscience condone what they saw. If high-ranking federal officials are allowed to summarily fire their subordinates based on the flimsy, ambiguous reasons indicated in the Supreme Court's rulings, government workers will understandably be fearful of stepping forth when they observe improper actions by their superiors.

The loyalty of a public servant — at the local, state or federal level — should belong first to the citizens whose taxes support him. Hopefully, despite the court's decisions, fairness will still prevail to encourage government workers to let their consciences guide their actions.

THE CABLE FABLE IN SEARCH OF AN ENDING

The continuing story that asks the question, "Can a little idea from out of the sticks find happiness as the rival of the big television networks?" may be reaching a climax.

The idea, whose time keeps coming but never quite seems to arrive, is cable television, or pay TV, which began by piping in clear television pictures to folks whose reception was garbled by mountains or tall buildings or by their distance from the broadcast source.

The climax is a decision expected soon from the Federal Communications Commission on whether pay TV should have the right to bid for late-run Hollywood movies or live sports events such as a Super Bowl or World Series. These shows would then be offered to homes with cable TV, either for a flat fee per show or per month.

The over- the - air stations supported by advertising fear that they would begin losing large numbers of viewers affluent enough or interested enough to afford pay TV. With audiences declining, advertisers would start losing interest in sponsoring the big, expensive movies and sports events now provided free to the great mass of TV watching families.

Already, they point out, we have seen heavyweight championship fights disappear from free television, where the telecasts were paid for by advertisers. Instead, boxing fans must now purchase expensive tickets and go to a selected theater to see such attractions.

A spokesman for the industry, Arthur R. Taylor, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, states that he does not oppose pay television as a legitimate competitor if it operates independently of over- the air-television.

But he argues that the programs which cable television now transmits over its wires to gain entry into the American household are not its own but those of free television.

Cable TV does perform a valid service by giving better reception to some areas, says Taylor, "but the local - origin programs they are telecasting lack any mass audience appeal and the system would serve a better purpose if they put on specialized attractions, which most of them don't."

The pay TV people counter that the only way cable TV can become profitable, and therefore be able to bring viewers extra channels and diversified programming, is to offer top movies and sports events and charge viewers to see them. And, of course, they cannot improve their programming unless they get more subscribers.

It is thus a real "chicken - and - egg" situation.

According to at least one television critic, UPI writer Rick DuBrow, the commercial networks are waging a scarce campaign.

Anyway, he asks, "What is so free about a system that every few minutes? That's a price, and the public pays it — as a captive consumer audience and in terms of mental distraction."

Everyone agrees that cable TV is an important technological advance. In the future, if financially feasible, cable TV will be able to bring 20, 40 or even 100 additional channels into homes.

This means, at least theoretically, that local special - interest groups could air their views on television, entertainment events appealing to limited audiences should be presented and even such benefits as shopping by television would be possible.

The big hitch is money — how it is all going to be paid for, and by whom.

NOT BUTZ ABOUT IT:
LET THEM EAT KASHA

Eight American economists, including four Nobel laureates, have urged that nations hurt by Arab oil blackmail consider a counter- embargo.

It would be more productive, they say, for oil-consuming nations to confer with eath other on such countermeasures as withholding food and manufactured goods "than to outdo each other in subservience which profits them nothing."

According to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, however, the administration considered, and rejected, the idea that the United States cut back food shipments to those Arab nations withholding oil from the West.

One reason, he says, is that it would be ineffective; the Arabs could easily make up the difference elsewhere — probably from the Soviet Union, which harvested record crops this fall.

That may actually be the best argument in favor of a little counterpressure of our own.

The worst possible reason to deny food to the Arabs would be if it caused them real hardship. People can make do with less heat in their homes and less gasoline for their cars, but they cannot do without food. If the United States were to refuse to share its surplus stocks with hungry people, it would inevitably lay itself open to the charge of "genocide."

But today, world grain production is at an all-time high. Let the Arabs scramble a little to find willing exporters. Let them suffer a few inconveniences.

Despite their readiness to accept Russian arms, the last thing the Arabs want is to become totally dependent upon the Soviet Union. Let them worry about that prospect a little bit.

YOUR BLOOD IS NEEDED

As most Americans have never given any blood at all, the record of Mr. Alfred Ross of New York, 135 pints -- nearly 17 gallons -- is remarkable. The white- haired musician has passed his 66th birthday, the cutoff for blood donation of both the American Association of Blood Banks and the American Red Cross. He can give no more, but he hopes that more younger men and women will continue to do so. "Anybody who knows the need for blood will give it," says Ross, who plays the drums with the touring "Disney on Parade" show, "In every city", he adds, "there are children, sometimes whole hospital wards of them, whose lives depend upon regular blood transfusions. They have Cooley's anemia, leukemia, hemophilia and other afflictions."

If four million people between 18 and 66 and in good health, give just two pints a year, all foreseeable blood needs can be met, says Dr. William G. Battaile, president of the American Assocation of Blood Banks. Can you spare two? They may save a life.

CONVERTING THE HEAT TO LIGHT

It was fun while it lasted, the game of "pin the tail on the oil donkey."

Members of the U. S. Senate's Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations took turns in a series of sessions last week grilling representatives of seven major oil companies as the committee began hearings into the fuel crisis and — to use one commentator's phrase — the industry's "oil-gotten gains."

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, for one, accused the executives of using the present conditions of fright and panic "to squeeze out the small independent dealers and some of your own franchisers."

The Connecticut Democrat charged them not only with misleading the people and the government about the fuel situation but of "cheating the American public" by means of tax breaks and other tax-law provisions, such as the depletion allowance.

The time has come to translate all this heat into a little light.

What the oil companies are doing if they are doing it, is either legal or illegal. If it is illegal, the solution would seem to be relatively simple.

If it is legal but undesirable, then it would seem to be the course of wisdom to leave off castigating those who are disadvantaged by the laws and begin looking to those who framed the laws in the first place.

If the oil industry is enjoying unwarranted benefits from the tax laws, then change the laws. If the depletion allowance is a bad thing, then let's get rid of it entirely or revise it so that it serves the purpose for which it was intended — encouraging the development of new petroleum sources.

"The facts are," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., as he opened the hearings, "we do not have the facts."

Well, get the facts, gentlemen, and then bring them before the American public.

1,439 FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEES

There are now no less than 1,439 federal advisory committees, employing about 4,400 tax- paid staff members. It takes a massive 995- page index prepared by the Library of Congress just to list all the committees and their members.

Setting up a committee to study a problem is often a politician's favorite answer to those pressing him for a solution to it, although the reports of these committees are rarely acted upon. Operating almost completely out of touch with Congress and the President, when they do present serious proposals they are often unacceptable. For example, President Johnson flatly rejected the report of his National Commission on Urban Problems (cost $1.5 million), while President Nixon just as firmly refused to accept the reports of his Commission on Obscenity and Pornography (cost $1.8 million) and his Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence (cost $1.3 million).

In 1973, Congress passed a law to deal with the proliferation of these advisory committees by setting up another committee!

Most of these committees are immortal, though they may not meet for years. For instance, the Commission on Standardization of Screw Threads was formed in 1918 for one year's work. It got two three- year extensions and is still in existence, along with the Dance Advisory Committee, the Board of Tea Experts and a review committee on laxatives.

If our people would come to realize that no real problem is ever solved and most are not helped by appointing a federal, tax- supported committee, we might be on our way to cutting the number of federal commissions down to reasonable size. HLH

THERE IS NO NEW NIXON

WASHINGTON — I received a call the other night from a former White House aide whom I'll call "Deep Toes." He said he had to meet me right away and he gave me the address of an abandoned garage in Chevy Chase.

When I arrived he took me over to a wall and we sat down on the hard cement. He lit a cigarette.

"I got something very important to tell you "

"What is it?" I said excitedly.

"You know you've been writing about the New Nixon and Old Nixon for the last five years? Well there is no New Nixon and there never was."

"You've got to be kidding. I saw the New Nixon with my own eyes. The whole country saw him in 1969, 1970, 1971 and even 1972."

Deep Toes shook his head. "It was the old Nixon with make-up on. We dyed his hair, powdered his cheeks and put him in new suits. We had everybody fooled. You were the biggest patsy of all. Any time we fed you something on the New Nixon you ate it up. We couldn't believe you'd be that stupid, but you were."

"Whose idea was it to put out the story there was a New Nixon?"

"Chuck Colson and John Dean cooked it up between them. They figured if they were going to resort to a lot of dirty stuff in Nixon's second term, it would be better to do it in the name of the New Nixon rather than the Old Nixon. You see, people would have been very wary if they thought the Old Nixon was running for office."

"What a damn fool I was," I said, hitting my head against the cement wall. "Was the President in on it?"

"Of course he was in on it. He played along with the whole thing. When he was in public he was the New Nixon, but when he talked to us privagely he was the Old Nixon, cuss words and all."

"He sure did a good job," I said. "He could have gotten been for Watergate."

"What do you think the coverup was all about?" Deep Toes said.

"The President wasn't worried about national security or the Plumbers operation or Daniel Ellsberg. He was worried that Watergate would reveal that the Old Nixon was running the country. If it had come out before the election, he would have had a very tough time defeating George McGovern."

"I suppose so. But what proof do I have that there was no New Nixon, except for your word?"

Deep Toes lit another cigarette. "Who do you think cooked up the tax deductions, the real estate deals with Bebe Rebozo, the milk fund business? Only the Old Nixon knew how to deal with those problems."

"I forgot about that."

"Have you read the transcripts? Does that sound like a New Nixon? The Nixon on those tapes was the guy who shafted Jerry Voorhis and Helen Gahagan Douglas. When you hear them, you won't have any doubts about who has been running the country for the last five years. Look, don't feel bad, you weren't the only one who thought there was a New Nixon. Even Hugh Scott believed it until a few weeks ago."

"I guess you're right," I said. "But why are you telling me all this? This stuff could blow the President right out of the water."

Deep Toes took a drag on his cigarette. "I'm getting back at Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, the guys on The Washington Post who broke the Watergate story."

"What do you mean?"

'They promised that if I leaked the Watergate details to them they would see that Robert Redford would play (ital) me (unital) in the movie. Now it turns out Redford is going to play Woodward. So I figured from now on, if I have anything good, I'm going to leak it to you. When you break the story that there never was a New Nixon, it's going to make Woodward and Bernstein look like a pair of incompetent

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Nixon to Aides: 'Worst is Over'

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has told aides that he believes the national outrage over the White House transcripts has died down and that he has now weathered the worst of the storm.

Sources privy to the President's private conversations say he feared for awhile that the crescendo of criticism might become overpowering. He felt the demands for his resignation, which came pouring in from Republican leaders and conservative newspapers, were "hysterical."

Ironically, the President credits Democratic leaders with abating the storm. He had frankly expected them to join in the clamor for his resignation, he has confided. Instead, House Speaker Carl Albert, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Senate Democratic whip Robert Byrd spoke out against resignation and broke the momentum.

This had the dramatic effect, the President told aides, of lawmen calming a mob at the jailhouse door.

Nixon is grateful to the opposition leaders for preventing Congress from becoming "a runaway grand jury" on the eve of the impeachment hearings. He has confidence that the responsible leaders of Congress will now keep the impeachment proceedings on an even course.

VIETNAM SPENDING: The Vietnam war may have disappeared from the front pages, but the American taxpayers are still financing South Vietnam's military effort.

Two unreleased studies disclose that the United States is now paying 86 per cent of the cost of maintaining the Saigon regime and that it may aid for the rest of this century.

President Nixon is asking for $2.4 billion in military and economic aid for Saigon for the coming year. This amounts to 32 per cent of the total U.S. aid for the entire world. Counting Laos and Cambodia, the embattled peninsula will get close to half of all U.S. aid.

The studies were conducted by the Indochina Resource Center, a private research group which keeps a close watch on Southeast Asian affairs, and by NARMIC, a project of The American Friends Service Committee.

South Vietnam's economy, warn the studies, "in the manner of a heroin user, is addicted to American aid." They quote a confidential World Bank study, which concludes Saigon will still require $770 million a year in 1980 and $300 million to $450 million in 1990. Looking beyond 1990, the World Bank claims "Saigon will continue to remain highly dependent on foreign aid."

In short, the studies contend that the Saigon government is an "artificial state," kept afloat mainly by the generosity of the American taxpayers.

The biggest drain on the South Vietnamese economy, charge the studies, is corruption. "Certainly more than a few (Saigon) subjects are millionaires or nearly so," the documents state, and "there are probably several hundred" who together could pay the government's bills "each year for a decade hence."

These South Vietnamese profiteers are able to escape heavy taxation. Consequently, state the reports, "indigenous Vietnamese tax revenues have not any time in the last decade produced more than 15 per cent of the total resources spent to sustain" the CLOSING COSTS: Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., has been trying to lower real estate closing costs, a racket that costs the homebuyers $14 billion a year.

But he has been outmaneuvered in the backrooms by Sen. Bill Brock, R-Tenn., the handsome banker's son who seems to take his signals from the counting houses.

As private correspondence between the two antagonists show, Proxmire thought he could bring his subcommittee around to forcing the Housing and Urban Development Department to crack down on closing costs.

But Brock wanted to take this power away from the government, leaving homeowners to the tender mercies of title companies, title searchers and insurers, real estate lawyers and others who profit from high closing costs.

Brock offered some reforms in a double play that would also strip the government of its authority to regulate closing costs. Enticed by the reforms, even such consumer men as Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., and Bob Packwood, R-Ore., supported Brock's maneuver.

Meanwhile, in the House, Rep. Leonor Sullivan, D-Mo., was so upset over a parallel move by Rep. Robert Stephens, D-Ga., to fleece homebuyers that she wrote personal letters to members of the House Banking Committee. "It would be extremely unwise," she pleaded with them, to accept the Stephens measure.

FOOTNOTE: Brock insisted to us that he has the best interests of homebuyers, not banks, at heart. Consumer men who voted with Brock said they were getting the best bill possible, under the

Don't Break A Leg:
See New Union- Hospital Costs Contracts Soon Driving Room Rates to $300 Daily

NEW YORK-- Last November the voices of Cesar Chavez and the late Martin Luther King, Jr.'s widow, Coretta, were raised here at the founding convention of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees. Today, exactly 15 years after the first massive hospital strike in the land, that union's husky local affiliate is pounding the table, demanding what appears to be a $100 million increase in wages and fringes during a one-year contract with the 50-member League of Voluntary Hospitals.

Doing the pounding and raising the banners of the famed New York Local 1199 is its oft- virulent president Leon Davis who also heads the national organization created last November.

There will be loud cries of another strike-- such as the one which shut hospitals down here for a week also last November.

It all got ugly last winter. The union was fined $600,000. Its 10 officers here hit for $123,500. These have not yet been paid. Words on the picket lines, as doctors, nurses and supervisors struggled to keep the medical institutions alive, were uglier.

Now the showdown is set for contract's end-- midnight June 30. There's history in the making for many reasons. Before these negotiations are over we'll know whether wage-fringe increases shaved from a union contract by the old Cost of Living Council (COLC) can be re- demanded and whether the hospitals, or any management for that matter, can be forced to pay. The COLC and all its powers are dead. Who's to prevent anything?

We'll also know how soon the daily cost of a hospital's double (semi- private) room here will spring from an average $170- 185 to a range of $200 to $220.

And how close this nation will be getting to a $300- a-day room.

It's obvious that when President Nixon talks of an average medical cost of $110 daily he hasn't been back to New York for a long time.

There are some hospitals here where one can get the "simplest kind" of treatment and care. But even Golda Meir wouldn't send Syrian President al- Assad to one of these rooms.

What's critical here is what develops during Leon Davis's bargaining with the voluntary league which is made up of such hospitals as Columbia-Presbyterian, St. Luke's, Mount Sinai and others. There will be rippling effects in the four million- employe health industry-- the nation's third largest-- in which fiscal '74 billion.

Davis's national union has contracts with hospitals in 14 states and the District of Columbia.

"Obviously New York will greatly affect goals and standards outside (New York) to shoot for," says one of Local 1199's (Drug and Hospital Union, AFL CIO) top strategists.

Hospital workers here are the nation's highest- paid service employes. A special study being prepared by management will claim that the hospital attendants, many of them unskilled albeit many are hardworking, earn an average of 18 per cent more than manufacturing employes in this area.

There is agreement that nurses' aides. "technicians," porters, et al, earn from $151 to $179 (reportedly the average) for a 37 1/2- hour week.

Now the union has gone "Oliver" in traditional militant fashion. First it wants the hospital league to increase the pay and pensions by the amounts cut by the COLC. This would provide a higher base pay. Then would come the negotiations for a new contract.

To put the union's signature to a renewal Davis and his high command are asking, first, for a $25- a- week wage increase. Or 15 per cent, whichever is higher.

And that's just for a one-year pact. He wants wages increased every three months-- amounts to be adjusted to the increased Consumer Price Index rise. Also four weeks vacation after one year. Five weeks after five years.

Retirement on half pay after 25 years employment. Full pension vesting after 10 years. Accumulated sick leave to be paid on retirement in addition to one week's severance pay for every year worked.

There's much more, including what would virtually become a closed shop. Today the hospitals must go the union's hiring hall for workers. They must be supplied in 24 hours or the institution can hire from the open field. Now Davis wants a seven- day period except in emergencies. This would give the union a chance to pull in proposed employes from across the land.

Leaders of the voluntary (non- profit) hospital league claim some hospitals will have to close. Some constantly run multimillion- dollar deficits. Davis shouts for a "living wage" for his people.

Whatever happens here, the institutions had better prepare "shock treatment" rooms for the rank- and- file citizen. Meaning no disrespect to my good friend David Rockefeller who unhappily fractured a thighbone in Taiwan the other day- he'll be the only one who can afford it if this spiral

Kissinger seeks to break deadlock with own plan

JERUSALEM (AP) Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today he plans to offer his own compromise proposal aimed at breaking the Syrian-Israeli deadlock over troop limitations on the Golan front.

As he spoke, tank and artillery fire boomed along the front and Israeli and Syrian planes attacked each other's positions on the rocky plateau. The Syrians claimed knocking down three Israeli jets, but the Tel Aviv command said all its planes returned safely.

"We are considering whether approaching the issue of thinning out forces with an American proposal might help matters," Kissinger told newsmen after meeting Israeli leaders for nearly three hours.

Information Minister Shimon Peres said Kissinger was contemplating a middle of the road proposal, which he declined to spell out. But he said the secretary's idea was "a bridging proposition which would take into consideration the particular sharp sensibilities of both sides."

Kissinger introduced an American initiative last week and won both side's approval of a truce line.

A senior U.S. official said Kissinger would return to the Syrian capital later today or Saturday, hoping to wrap up an agreement separating the two countries' hostile armies in the Golan Heights.

Either way, the official said, Kissinger will go home on Sunday—the 28th day of his marathon shuttle diplomacy mission.

The official said Thursday night that Israel and Syria were "considerably closer" to agreement on thinning their forces than they had been 24 hours earlier.

He said the progress came after Kissinger offered suggestions privately to Israeli Premier Golda Meir and later to President Hafez Assad of Syria in 4½ hours of talks.

Kissinger also reportedly made progress on determining the size of the United Nations force that will patrol the thinned-out regions and a buffer zone between the armies. A cease-fire line reportedly already is set.

"It is my judgment that we have made good progress in the negotiations," Kissinger said at a luncheon in Damascus. "Even if we should for some reason not complete it in this session, we will surely bring it to a successful conclusion in the near future."

There was speculation that other U.S. negotiators might remain behind to keep talks going.

At the luncheon, which Kissinger gave for Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam and other Syrian officials, Kissinger described a separation of Israeli and Syrian forces as "a first step" toward a "just and permanent peace" in the Middle East.

While Kissinger was in Damascus, Israeli politicians signed a coalition agreement guaranteeing that Premier-designate Yitzhak Rabin will head a new government and have a twoseat majority in the Israeli parliament.

To be included with the ruling Labor alignment are the Independent Liberal party—a traditional government partner—and the Citizens Rights Movement, which supports dovish Arab policies and has worked for women's rights.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said he would not serve in the new coalition.

Judge says Nixon could not authorize break-in WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said today President Nixon lacked the authority to authorize the break-in at Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office and that Nixon gave no specific directive permitting the break-in.

But the judge gave permission to the five men charged with conspiracy in the case—including two former top Nixon aides—to seek material from the White House and indicated he might dismiss the case if they didn't receive what was necessary for a fair trial.

Gesell said that if material evidence is suppressed after a specific demand from one of the defendants, "the court will use the full range of its sanctions, including dismissal if necessary, to insure that defendants will receive a fair trial."

Gesell made that ruling shortly after denying a defense request for a change of venue or delay in the trial for at least a year.

Those decisions came about two hours before the judge's firm deadline for a White House response to two subpoenas.

U.S. oil trade up for April

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a 43 per cent increase in petroleum imports, the United States had a trade surplus of $92.8 million during April, the government reported today.

The April surplus followed a trade deficit in March of $171 million, the first deficit in nine months.

Both the quantity and cost of petroleum imports were up sharply during April, reflecting the end to the Arab oil embargo and the much higher prices that oil-producing nations are demanding.

The Commerce Department said the nation paid a record of $2.4 billion in April for imports of mineral fuels, almost all of it petroleum, compared with $1.7 billion in March.

Imports by quantity totaled 192.5 million barrels, up from 161.1 million barrels in March.

Radiation from TV takes time

Dear Ann Landers: Last weekend my husband and I went to a dinner party in a suburb about 30 miles from our home. We couldn't get our regular babysitter, so we let her provide a 16- year- old substitute whom she described as "very reliable."

When we arrived home at about 2:00 a.m., the sitter and our 11- month- old child were asleep on the floor in front of the TV.

When we woke her up she was embarrassed and apologetic. The baby was sleeping so soundly she didn't even wake when we put her in her own bed. My husband was very upset. He said it's dangerous for young children to spend several hours in front of the TV because of radiation.

Is this true? Please check and let us know.-- Concerned Parents

Dear Parents: It would have to be an old color TV and a person would have to sit very close to the set day after day in order to get enough radiation to be harmful. For several years, federal regulations have made it mandatory that all color TV manufacturers enclose the picture tube in a lead- type glass shield.

TV might be harmful to a child's eyes, however, if he consistently sits too close to the screen, and there can be some radiation from a defective set, so sitting close, as a regular habit, should be discouraged.

Dear Ann Landers: You must lead a pretty sheltered life, kiddo. I refer to the letter from the woman whose husband grabbed at her night and day, made suggestive remarks in front of the children and so on. She felt such behavior belonged in the bedroom. Someone else wrote to say a husband who behaves like that probably isn't getting much in the bedroom either.

You agreed that such a wife should "put herself out a little," even if her carnal appetite didn't quite match "Randy Andy's."

Now, back to your sheltered life, Ann: Don't you know that there are men who appear to be very respectable and polite, even courtly, but are bearcats behind closed doors? There is no such thing as "enough" for these animals.

I was married to an insatiable lecher for seven years and finally my doctor advised me to divorce him because he was a sex fiend. So why don't You wake up and smell the coffee?-- Free And Thankful

Dear F. And T.: I'm awake and the coffee smells delicious. That advice was for the millions of people who have approximate normalcy. I didn't get the impression that the woman who wrote was married to a sex fiend. When she called him "Randy Andy," however, I had a sneaking suspicion that she might be "Frigid Brigitte."

Dear Ann Landers: I felt sorry for those parents who had to watch their gluttonous Ph.D. son heap enormous portions on his plate and then finish everybody's leftovers. Small wonder he was 120 pounds overweight.

That man's problem is the same as alcoholism, only his weakness is food instead of drink. I had the same illness and learned how to arrest it through Overeaters Anonymous. We find out what's eating us that makes us overeat. I lost 80 pounds in the program and gained my self-respect and peace of mind.

The address of the national headquarters is: Overeaters Anonymous, 2365 Westwood Blvd. No. 25, Los Angeles, Calif. 90064.

Thanks Ann. You might change a lot of lives today.-- New Me.

Dear You: Since Overeaters Anonymous has a strong religious tie- in, it might not work for everyone. But I've heard from readers who swear by it. Thanks for writing.

The return of the garter belt?

According to a recent Associated Press article, the garter belt is back in fashion in such cities as Paris, France...so it was decided to do a survey of Sikeston stores to see if any of the younger generation was asking for the dainty lingerie items to "keep in step".

Of 11 stores checked for the garter belt, nine store representatives said their firms don't even keep the item in stock, although a couple said the item could be ordered by catalog.

One store owner said she does not stock garter belts, but would order some if she had requests or if a new trend hits the Midwest. Her personal opinion is that the garter belt is sexier than pantyhose and that with the coming of more dresses and feminine wear, the garter belt may well regain its place in the lingerie assortment.

The other two stores reported garter belt sales had declined for the past three to four years. "Sales used to soar," one saleswoman commented," but with the age of pantyhose, we sell very few...just to the old customers (not young) who prefer the garter belt."

A spokesman for the other store still carrying them said many were sold on "doctor's orders" for women who had leg problems of some sort.

So...the women in Paris may be "oohing and aahing" over the newest nostalgia wave, but in the Sikeston area women are sticking to pantyhose.

The following Associated Press article, by John Vinocur, tells how things are going in Paris:

PARIS (AP)— For those worried about La France Eternelle and her somber position on the Common market, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and other grave subjects, take heart: the soul of France is still eternelle.

The garter belt is back.

Returning are the days of one knee gently crossing another, an inch or less of flesh flashing at a stocking top. After a decade of domination, the pantyhose conspiracy is trembling in its socks.

Stockings and garter belt sales are up 20 per cent in Paris this spring, especially among women 17 to 25, according to industry figures. And a small boom is expected by fall.

"It's fine news," said Antoine Blondin, a popular French writer who has campaigned against pantyhose. "The first thing I give a woman I love is a garter belt.

"There's nothing more desert- like than pantyhose- no contrasts- and nobody visits a desert. The garter belt on the other hand is like a James Bond weapon. The thigh encircled the arrow of the garter, the little bit of promised land between the panty and the stocking. It's as beautiful a design as the Parthenon."

The origin of the fashion is apparently the nostalgia wave of the 1930's and movies in which actresses like Jacqueline Bisset looked nicely evil in stockings and a garter belt.

"It's obviously erotic," said Jacques Matalon, a spokesman for the stocking industry. "Why describe it any other way?

"The production of garter belts was almost stopped when the kids began asking for them. The industry has geared up— it doesn't represent much of an investment— and now we'll see. It may not last more than a season or two. Although men will encourage their women to wear them, we've found out that mostly women don't give a damn about what men think in terms of fashion. So this is something that young women like."

Matalon said the fashion seemed to be making inroads in Britain, but that the United States was still mired in the pantyhose era. In fact, he said American stocking manufacturers with large stocks have been inquiring about selling them off on the new French market.

Blondin, a serious writer who recently had a page one commentary on the French presidential election in the newspaper le Figaro, is completing a book on the garter belt.

"Between Brigitte Bardot and an insignificant little girl in a garter belt and stockings, there would not be a second's hesitation for me," he said.

Caring for your new baby

Colds not unusual in first year

XVII. Common Problems and Worries — Part 3

(EDITOR'S NOTE:) This is another in a series of 18 articles presented by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to describe things about normal babies that commonly worry parents. The articles should answer many questions about what to expect of a new baby and give simple instructions about solving problems that most parents face during the baby's first year of life. This last section of articles deals with common problems and worries that arise after the first few weeks at home and that might continue on after the first year.)

Sucking

Most babies get their thumbs and fingers in their mouths and suck on them. Many seem to find it especially enjoyable and do it often. It causes no harm and can be ignored.

Some mothers don't like the looks of thumb and finger sucking and substitute a pacifier for the thumb. This also is fine, and the pacifier can be thrown away toward the end of the first year. But don't substitute the pacifier for the attention, food, or diaper changes that your baby wants and needs when he is crying.

Crossed Eyes

Your baby's eyes should look straight at you when he is awake and alert. One may turn in or out slightly when he is particularly tired, but both eyes should work together almost all of the time. If not, seek medical advice at your baby 's next checkup. Don't be fooled by a wide nose which may make the eyes look as if they are turning in.

Frequent Urination

Most babies urinate nearly every hour until they are two or three months old, every two or three hours for the rest of the first year and will sometimes urinate two or three times in a very short period. But if your young baby never seems to go more than an hour, if he strains very hard to urinate, or if he always urinates in a weak trickle or very tight stream, you should tell the doctor about it at the next checkup.

Colds

Many babies have a slightly stuffy, rattly noise in their noses nearly all the time. This is not a cold, it just seems to be the way they are made. It will become less and less noisy and noticeable as he gets older, the air passages of the nose get larger, and he learns to clear his nose by sniffling.

Don't use a lot of cold remedies with such a baby. You may be able to reduce the noise by sucking out his nose several times a day with a small rubber bulb called a nasal syringe.

Most babies will have two or three real colds in the first year, although a perfectly normal baby may have eight or nine.

With a cold he will become a little fussy and lose part of his appetite. His nose will start running with clear watery material which will later become thick and sticky. His eyes may look red, he may cough frequently and make a lot of noise when he breathes. He may have a fever. The cold may last four or five days, or two or three weeks, and if a cough starts it may continue as long as four or five weeks.

Neither you nor your doctor can do much about it except keep your baby as comfortable as possible. If he seems uncomfortable with aches and pains, give him half a baby aspirin three or four times a day. Use the nasal syringe to clear his nose when it bothers him. A mixture of honey and lemon juice given one teaspoon every four hours will do as much good for a cough as many fancy cough medicines.

When you should worry - If he seems very weak and sick, has no energy to even cry loudly, nurses poorly, doesn't want over half of his usual bottle, doesn't wake up to be playful for even a short time -- then you should seek medical care quickly.

How sick he acts tells much more about how seriously ill he might be than anything else. If he has a high fever and a cough, but takes some of his bottle eagerly and wants to play, you don't have to worry. But if he is listless, weak, uninterested in attention, play or his bottle, you should get him to a doctor quickly.

If he has labored breathing you should have him checked. This means he has to work so hard at breathing -- getting the air in and out -- that he has no energy left for anything else, even for his bottle or playing. Making a lot of noise breathing is not important, but having to work very hard to breathe is!

If he cries and moans as if in pain for several hours while he has a cold, you should get him checked by a doctor. If he is just fussy and goes to sleep after you comfort him or give him half a baby aspirin, you needn't worry. But painful cries shouldn't be ignored.

You will probably want to check with a doctor the first times your baby has a bad cold, but you will soon learn what to expect with his colds and how to treat them.

You really can't do much to prevent a cold. Colds are most contagious -- most easily passed from one person to another -- during the few days before the signs of a cold appear. Once a person has had a cold for a few days, he is no longer likely to give it to someone else, so staying away from a person with signs of a cold will not help much.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Lazy parkers irk a shopper

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know if there is anything that will take OLD tea stains out of a linen tablecloth. They remained after it was washed. — A.B.C.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with healthy people who are too lazy to take a few steps to the door of a shop but have to park right in front even if it is a no-parking zone. They do not care about blocking traffic or keeping trucks from unloading. If they are too lazy to walk from the parking lot they should stay at home. I wish stores had meter maids to give them tickets. Maybe then they would park in the lot and stop blocking traffic.

Other Pet Peeves are salespeople who will not take "No" for an answer and telephone salespeople are the worst. Then, too, there are those people who expect their mail and newspapers to be delivered to the door in all kinds of weather but will not even bother to clean a path in the snow for deliverymen to walk on. I thought there was a law that said people had to clean off their walks. — MARTHA.

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Eva who spotted her doubleknit dress with fabric softener. This can be removed. Wet the material and rub the spots well with that almost 100 per cent pure white soap. This takes time and work but worked for me on an entire pants suit. — LYNETTE.

DEAR POLLY — Eva who poured fabric softener on a knit dress and had spots all over it should first rub all the spots with a detergent and then wash it in the machine with an all-purpose bleach that is used for colored clothes. It may have to be repeated a few times but they should come out. — BELLE.

DEAR POLLY — The maker of a well-known washer also says that if undiluted fabric softener is dropped on fabric it may leave colored spots but the fabric should not be damaged and the spots can be removed by rubbing with a liquid detergent. Rewash, using chlorine bleach IF safe for the

Clamps off after 101-pound loss

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Writer

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — "I feel beautiful. I'll never slip back to being fat," Shirley Turner said Thursday as she revealed that her jaws had been uncemented, ending a six-month slimming ordeal.

Doctors and dentists had installed a silver clamp to hold her teeth together last November to stop her insatiable nibbling and it was removed Wednesday, the 36-year-old housewife said.

Mrs. Turner, mother of two teen-age daughters, lost 101 pounds through the liquid diet she was forced to follow, dropping from 247 pounds to 146.

She said she still hopes to reach her "bikini target" of 136 pounds by the time she and her family go on vacation at the end of June.

"I know it," she said. "I'll never eat bread and potatoes again in my life."

"I would smile if I could, but it hurts too much," she said "You have no idea how tender my jaws feel after six months being jammed together."

Doctors at Nottingham General hospital decided to remove the clamp after Mrs. Turner complained of agonizing pain in her locked jaws last week.

"The pain was red hot, my face felt swollen, I couldn't sleep," she said. "It appears that the silver plate holding my jaws together had slipped and was setting up an infection."

The doctor who examined her at the hospital said, "I think you've had enough."

An upper and bottom silver plate had been cemented to her own teeth and locked together by a clamp. The plates had been taken out for cleaning once or twice during the six months but she was not finally freed of the contraption until Wednesday.

Its removal took 45 minutes and she said, "It was murder."

What did her husband, himself a hefty 210-pounder, say when his wife told him her jaws were free.

Mrs. Turner forced a tiny smile and replied, "He said it was about time."

Children may have mistaken sense of what money is

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

BENTON — "Money can't buy happiness, but it sure helps," is a cliche often used. Phrases like: "Money talks", or "almighty dollar" impress children and often gives them a mistaken sense of just what money is.

As a parent or teacher or club leader, you'll probably want your child to learn how to use money wisely and to have a good attitude toward it.

Learning about the proper use of money and other resources begins at home. Within limits parents still do more than anyone else to mold the attitudes of their children. Of course, the TV media, his friends and your friends also have some influence, but your example is still prime factor in his attitudes.

It isn't enough to talk about intelligent money use. Children react to what they see and feel in the home.

A complaint of many young people is that society is too "materialistic." There are many things we can have and enjoy without spending money, but perhaps we've failed to communicate this to our children. Perhaps we've been overly concerned about our social position, believing that it depends solely upon our income. Keeping in mind the positive side -- what we can do with our money, rather than what we can't do will help to keep our own attitudes pointed in the right direction.

You reinforce your teaching when you meet your child's needs for love. Just as emotionally deprived adults sometimes spend money as a substitute for affection, so do children. Insecurity and anxiety may lead children to overvalue possessions, especially money.

No two children are alike, so no two use money the same way, and your chief purpose will be to guide him in handling it wisely and to weigh values so he can make intelligent choices. According to a finance specialist, children who beg for extras or spend allowance unwisely learn the financial facts of life if they aren't over-indulged.

When extra money always appears for some "special thing," children figure money will always turn up from the inexhaustible well. Indirect experiences in money matters help children understand family income. For example, explain that a new battery or small house repair costs as much as a new bike.

Let him spend money, give him experiences in using money. For small children, it may be putting money in the meter, paying paper boy or buying a stamp to send his letter. An allowance helps them develop pattern and philosophy of spending.

Mistakes shouldn't be emphasized, because choice making isn't learned in one effort.

Set some limits on what a child has to spend at first, so that a mistake in judgment won't be a catastrophe.

Helping children develop the money management skills they need in a consumer-oriented work is a serious responsibility and one that should be approached with humor, understanding and common sense.

April food prices decline

By MIKE WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers saved 38 cents a week on food in April from March prices the Agriculture Department says, but two congressmen say the savings could have been higher if meat packers stopped hoarding beef.

Reps. Frank Benholm, D-S.D., and Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., said Thursday there is a record stockpile of 476 million pounds of meat in cold storage, 37 per cent higher than in 1973.

"We have a situation here that is wreaking havoc not only upon the American consumer but also upon the farmer. They are being cheated by those packers who are hoarding meat in cold storage warehouses and not releasing it into the marketplace," Wolff said at a news conference.

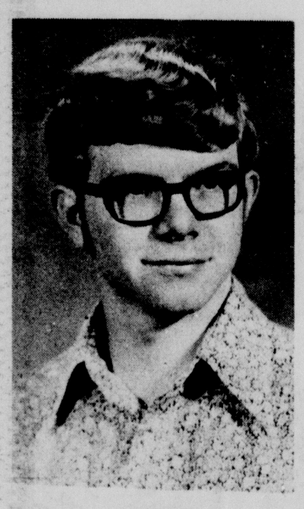
"A decline in food prices will remain only wishful thinking if market manipulation of this sort is allowed to continue."

"The consumers can scarcely pay more and certainly producers cannot take less," Denholm said. "The abnormalities of present circumstances are intolerable. The secretary of agriculture must do more to represent the interests of both the consumers and producers."

An Agriculture Department spokesman said he doubted if he would call it hoarding, but he said, "We think the pipeline ought to be cleared .... There's meat in the pipeline. While meat prices have declined a bit, they are nowhere near the drop at the farm level."

Relief from high food prices promised by the administration translated into a 1.1 per cent decline in retail prices of farmproduced food from March to April, the USDA said Thursday. It said that meant a $20 drop in a year's supply of groceries for what was called a typical 3.2-member household, or a savings of 38 cents a week.

The decline is the first since October.



Joe Basham

Sikeston youth to tour with singing group

Joe Basham has been chosen to sing this summer with the "Inside-Out Singers", a college-high school group from Gulf Coast Bible College of Houston, Tex.

The group consists of five high school students and seven college students plus the director and sound man. They will travel for 10 weeks throughout the Midwest including Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Wisconsin, Oklahoma and Texas.

They will present concerts in local churches and at several youth rallies, state camp meetings and the International Camp Meeting of the Church of God held each June in Anderson, Ind.

Joe, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Basham, 921 Arlington Road, is completing his junior year at Sikeston High School.

He is a member of the High School Concert Choir and is also active in the musical program of Tanner Street Church of God.

Basham is a part- time employe of Burger Chef.

He will fly from Memphis, Tenn., June 1 and begin an extensive training session in Houston on June 3.

Fewer dying at slower speeds

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Reinforced with statistics showing a significant decrease in traffic fatalities, Col. Sam S. Smith of the state highway patrol has said Missouri's 55 mile-an-hour speed limit will continue to be "vigorously enforced."

"Members of our department arrested more than 11,800 drivers and warned over 11,000 other motorists during April," Smith said Thursday.

A decrease of 202 fatalities has been recorded so far this year compared with 1973, he said, attributing much of the drop to lower speeds.

"This is a better life-saving record than the national average, which shows a 25 per cent reduction in traffic deaths for the first three months of 1974," the patrol superintendent said.

With insufficient patrolmen to thoroughly monitor drivers across the state, he emphasized the need for voluntary compliance with the new limit "to prevent the fatality and accident rate from increasing in the remaining months of 1974."

Gov. Christopher S. Bond, who has already been asked to seek a raising of the limit by Senate President pro tem William J. Cason, D-Clinton, continues to favor the lower speeds because "the energy problem is still with us.

"You've got to consider the fewer auto fatalities," zbond added. "We know there are inconveniences, but the public has got to get used to the 55 mile-an-hour limit."

The governor said he would consult with state public safety and transportation officials before determining whether to seek lifting of the new limit, imposed March 4 under threat of withdrawal of federal highway funds.

Information office disbanded

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The public information arm of the executive branch of Missouri state government is being disbanded, as reports earlier this week indicated it would be.

The official announcement of the demise of the Missouri Information Service was made Thursday by Robert L. James, state office of administration chief.

Legislative rejection of the proposal to consolidate certain information, photography and graphics functions into one unit that could reportedly have saved $77,000 annually prompted the action, James said.

Also creating a problem for the service was the addition of new responsibilities to the office of administration under state reorganization coupled with severe staff limitations, he added.

Two or three positions in the information office will be eliminated he said, but of the four full time staff members, two will remain in the office of administration to handle public information duties while the other two will be transferred to other departments.

The service had distributed news releases and made available tape recordings on the executive branch. James said the broadcast tapes will continue through June.

LEAC moves to head off cut

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council, bolstered by written assurances from the legislature, has moved to head off a threatened cut of federal anticrime funds to the state.

Robert C. Gruenfelder, LEAC executive director, said written assurances from members of the House-Senate Fiscal Affairs Committee indicating it wants the program continued prompted the council to approve implementation Thursday of a plan to enable it to increase its staff from 33 persons to 43, meeting federal requirements.

The plan would require each of the 19 regional law enforcement units in the state to provide the council, which administers about $13 million in federal funds, with local matching funds in proportion to the federal money each region receives.

According to Gruensfelder, Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood, a member of the committee, has stated in writing to one of the regional directors that the LEAC program should be continued. Gruensfelder said he has also been verbally assured of that stance by the committee chairman, Rep. Clarence Heflin, D-Independence.

The program was placed in doubt earlier this week when council officials told the Fiscal Affairs Committee they would not implement the matching funds plan if the committee rejected it. The legislators took no action on the proposal and Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, LEAC president, said the council took that to mean tacit approval.

"We're out of the woods now," Danforth said following the council action.

The funding plan, which will go into effect in July, will provide LEAC about $30,000 needed to augment a reduced state budget for the coming year of $26,500.

Without the additional money, Gruensfelder has said the staff would have to be reduced to 20 persons, and the federal government has said anticrime funds for the state would be halted if that happened.

A member of the fiscal affairs staff, Gruensfelder said, has been assigned as liaison to LEAC by Heflin in an apparent attempt to prevent future misunderstandings like the one which led to the latest crisis.

TYPISTS' SALARIES INCREASED IN '74

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Salaries for typists increased during the first quarter of 1974 but secretaries' salaries remained steady, according to a continuing survey by Western Temporary Services Inc.

Senior typists earned an average of $2.82 per hour during the first quarter of 1974 in the 11 cities surveyed.

Ashcroft reveals campaign spending

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — John D. Ashcroft, candidate for state auditor, has spent nearly $17,000 on his campaign, an audit report by Arthur Young and Co. of Kansas City shows.

The report, released by Ashcroft's office Thursday, showed that from Oct. 1, 1973 to April 24 of this year Ashcroft received $22,649.93 in contributions, spent $16,790.97 and has a balance of $5,858.96.

Ashcroft, a Republican, was appointed state auditor in 1973 by Gov. Christopher S. Bond, the former auditor.

Ashcroft's contributions totaled 830, averaging $27 apiece.

The biggest contribution from an individual was $500 from John Olin of Clayton. The smallest was a quarter mailed by Olive Roberts of Independence.

The largest contribution was $2,425.23 by Citizens for Accountability in Government of Springfield.

The biggest expenses were more than $2,000 for postage and $9,294.40 for consulting fees and expenses of Ashcroft's campaign manager, John Lichtenegger.

Ashcroft says he will make public three more edit the primary election day Aug. 6, Sept. 30 and again on the general election day, Nov. 5.

Admiral Poe reassigned

BLOOMFIELD — Rear Admiral Donald T. Poe, U.S. Navy, son of Lloyd Poe of Bloomfield, has been reassigned from his current duty as deputy director of operations in the Defense Communications Agency in Washington to commander in chief of U.S. Forces in Europe located in Stuttgart, Germany, where his assignment will be as director of communications-electronics.

Prior to attending the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., Admiral Poe graduated from the Bloomfield High School in 1940 and attended Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau for one year. He graduated from the Naval Academy in 1944 with a bachelor of science degree and was commissioned as an ensign.

Admiral Poe is also a graduate of the U.S. Naval Post Graduate School at Annapolis, the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va., and the National War College in Washington, D.C.

He received a master's degree in international affairs from Washington University. He also served as a senior research fellow in the strategic research group of the National War College.

Lilbourn collector resigns

LILBOURN — Mrs. Ruth Newton, Lilbourn city collector, has submitted her resignation to that office, effective June 7.

She has held the office for several terms and was re-elected in the April 2 election. She and her husband plan to go to Meridian, Miss., to assist their son Bob in his business there.

An election will be held probably on July 2, to fill the unexpired term of the office. Final plans for the election will be made at the regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen on June 6, according to Mayor Bill Tope.

Miss Jackie Garner has been employed to work in the office until it is filled at the election.

Dunklin landfill will not open by deadline

KENNETT — The Dunklin County Court said Thursday it will notify cities in the county that the county landfill system will not be operational by June 30 and cities should take necessary steps to seek an extension to continue operating their city dumps.

The county and cities face a deadline of June 30 to comply with a law requiring the governing agencies to implement a plan for solid waste management to be filed with the Missouri Division of Health.

A legislative attempt to delay planning for another year was turned down.

Meanwhile, the County Court is awaiting an engineer's report on the landfill site, which was purchased earlier this year on Crowley's Ridge near Campbell, which will be used as the depository for all county trash.

Presiding Judge Armon Harrison said the court would notify the cities that the landfill could not be ready for operation by the deadline date, thereby allowing the cities time to file a request for an extension to continue operating open dumps until the landfill is finished.

Guard to train in Kansas

CHARLESTON — Three units of the National Guard from Charleston will train this summer at Fort Riley, Kan., from Aug. 2-18.

The units are the 202nd Engineer Company (Dump Truck), which includes 46 enlisted men and one officer; the 117th Engineer Detachment, (water purification) which includes 17 enlisted men and one officer; and the 118th Engineer Detachment (water purification) which includes 18 enlisted men and one officer.

The 1140th Engineer Battalion, HHC, including companies A, B, C and D from Cape Girardeau, will train at Ft. Riley Aug. 17-31.

Vote on ambulance district set

KENNETT — No opposition was voiced Thursday at a public hearing on a proposed county ambulance district plan, and the Dunkin County Court set the proposal for a vote on the August primary ballot.

Presiding County Court Judge Armon Harrison and Associate Judges John Scott and Ralph Stropp said a vote on that date would save the county the expense of calling a special election.

County Clerk Bill Horner said a simple majority was required for passage of the matter. Twelve persons attended the hearing, which was set after a petition was presented earlier.

Lilbourn man to head retired teachers club

C. D. Wright of Lilbourn was elected president of the SeMo Area Retired Teachers Association at an organizational meeting Thursday in Sikeston Activity Center, 201 S. Kingshighway.

Other officers include Mrs. Elizabeth Daniels of Lilbourn, vice president and program chairman; Mrs. Amney May Riley of New Madrid Route One, secretary- reporter; and Mrs. Helen Loud Jones of Sikeston, treasurer.

Membership in the newly formed unit of the National Retired Teachers Association is composed of retired teachers in Scott and New Madrid counties.

Mrs. Ruth K. Elkins of Springfield, NRTA state director, explained health and welfare benefits available to members and stated there are 8,000 members in the state.

The next meeting is scheduled at 10:30 a.m. June 27 in Sikeston Activity Center. Retired teachers in Scott and New Madrid counties who are interested in joining the association are invited to attend.

Prayer for Today
from The Upper Room

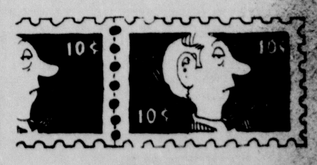
"God knew his own before ever they were, and also ordained that they should be shaped to the likeness of his son." (Romans 8:29)

PRAYER: O God, our loving Father, help us daily to become more like Thee. May Thy spirit find welcome in all hearts so that people everywhere may portray the true image of Thy Son, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven....Amen."

BARBS
By PHIL PASTORET

One way to keep our relatives happy is to visit them seldom.

Keeping the home fires burning is frowned on by the arson department.



They should put the common man on the next stamp issued: heaven knows, he takes a licking in every other way these days.

Paying on time is OK — but we always run out of time.

SOME OF OUR BEST SALESMEN HAD PRIOR SALES EXPERIENCE

SOME HAD NEVER SOLD A THING

This isn't as strange as it seems. We are among the most successful companies in America because of our interest in the person and not a specific background.

An outstanding line of industrial products, a large and growing market, and our commitment to training has helped our salespeople to average $20,000 annually in earned commissions. They are backed by a drawing account up to $300 weekly and an excellent fringe benefit package.

If you have an outgoing personality, a receptive mind, and the ability to express yourself to people like yourself, you may be able to realize your selling potential. Most essential, is your desire to grow financially and personally in direct proportion to your own efforts. Limited travel.

If you fit the above give us a call. We'd like to talk with you about you. Call Gene Pardo (collect) Friday, May 24, after 9:00 A.M., or Saturday May 25, 9:00 A.M. to 12 noon, (314)-727 6546, St. Louis, Mo. If unable to call, write today.

Fancy resumes not necessary - we hire people not paper.

Curl, Player Memphis leaders

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — South African Gary Player admits he's looking beyond the Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic to the U.S. Open three weeks from now.

Rod Curl is looking no further than the local weatherman.

"If it gets windy, if the wind comes up real good and blows hard, I've got a good chance of winning," Curl said Thursday after matching Player's course record 65 for a share of the first-round lead in this $175,000 event.

Curl, the diminutive Wintu Indian who scored his first career victory last Sunday in the Colonial National at Fort Worth, Tex., birdied his last three holes for a seven-underpar round on the 7,193-yard Colonial Country Club course.

"Hey, a man could get used to this in a hurry," the 5-foot-5 Curl said. "It's a wonderful feeling."

He and Player, the current Masters champion who's eyeing an unprecedented Grand Slam of golf, shared a one-stroke advantage over a group of four— two-time 1974 winner Hubert Green, Jim Colbert, Larry Ziegler and Bob Wynn—tied at 66.

Dave Hill, the defending titleholder and a four-time Memphis champion, was in good position at 67—two shots behind— as the touring pros took advantage of ideal playing conditions to post exceptionally low scores.

Lee Trevino, however, blew to a double bogey seven on his last hole and was eight shots back at 73. Many of the game's glamor names are skipping this event sandwiched between two "designated tournaments," events in which they must compete.

"The thing that's on my mind," said Player, "is the Grand Slam, winning those four tournaments."

The Grand Slam consists of a one-year sweep of the Masters, U.S. and British Opens, and the PGA. It's never been done. Only four players have won all four in a lifetime—Player, Nicklaus, Ben Hogan and Gene Sarazen.

Many observers feel a one-year sweep of the four is nearly impossible.

Fog spoils Pitt shutout

The Pittsburgh Pirates couldn't handle Steve Rogers' smoke ... but even Steve Rogers couldn't handle Montreal's fog.

The Expos' hot-shot righthander was mowing down the Pirates with ease Thursday night—six strikeouts with one walk and two hits in five innings—while his teammates were building a 3-0 lead for him.

None of the men on the Bucs' bench could cope with the Montreal flamethrower on the mound in the early going.

So the Man Upstairs stepped in.

In the top of the sixth inning, a dense fog which had been hovering over Jarry Park suddenly descended. And with its help, Pittsburgh finally got to Rogers.

With two outs and Ed Kirkpatrick on first base, Al Oliver hit a towering but playable fly ball to left-center field ... or toward it, at least. It disappeared when it left the infield.

It finally reappeared, falling between outfielders Willie Davis and Boots Day. And by the time they retrieved it, Kirkpatrick was crossing the plate and Oliver was on third.

That was enough for home plate umpire John Kibler. He halted play for 56 minutes, waiting for the mist to clear. In the interim, the fans were entertained momentarily by a streaker who bounded over a railing, cavorted around the infield, then raced to the outfield ... and vanished.

In the only other National League games, San Francisco edged Los Angeles 7-6 and San Diego nipped Cincinnati 5-4 in 13 innings. The Chicago Cubs' game against the Mets in New York was rained out.

Giants 7, Dodgers 6

Reliever Elias Sosa picked up his fifth triumph without a defeat this season, riding San Francisco's four-run seven inning burst to victory. Dave Rader's run-scoring single capped the rally.

Padres 5, Reds 4

Derrel Thomas drove in three runs including the game-winner with a 13th-inning sacrifice fly that gave the Padres their victory over the Reds Thursday night.

In the American League, California beat Kansas City 3-1, the Chicago White Sox whipped Texas 9-6, Milwaukee downed Detroit 7-3 and Cleveland silenced Baltimore 2-0.

Ryan beats Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nolan Ryan of the California Angels still has his whammy on the Kansas City Royals.

The Angels rocked the Royals 3-1 Thursday night as Bobby Valentine broke a 1-1 deadlock with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly.

The St. Louis Cardinals were idle.

Ryan, who hasn't lost to the Royals since 1972, pitched a four-hitter. Kansas City scored first when Amos Otis singled and John Mayberry doubled in the sixth inning.

Bruce Dal Canton's knuckle ball held the Angels to two singles, but his control slipped in the seventh and he walked the first two batters, Paul Schaal and Ellie Rodriguez. They moved up on Dave Chalk's sacrifice, and Joe Hoerner replaced Dal Canton, 2-2.

Mickey Rivers singled Schaal home, and Doug Bird replaced Hoerner. Denny Doyle was walked intentionally, filling the bases. Then Valentine hit his long fly, scoring Rodriguez.

Rodriguez drove home the third run in the eighth.

The Chicago White Sox move into Kansas City tonight with Stan Bahnsen, 5-3, starting against the Royals' Paul Splittorff, 4-4.

St. Louis scheduled Sonny Siebert, 3-3, against the Cubs' Rick Reuschel, 3-2, at Chicago this afternoon.

State tourney at Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF — A matchup of last seasons finalists, Kansas City Pem-Day and Illmo- Scott City, highlighted the opener of the Class A state baseball tournament here today. KC claimed the championship last year at Springfield.

Undefeated Nixa battled John Burroughs of StLouis in the second game that followed the 1:30 opener. Nixa is unbeaten in 14 games while KC has a 13-1 mark, I-SC a 15-3 record and John Burroughs a 10-10 slate.

Today's champions battle Saturday afternoon at 1:30 for the state championship.

Optimist, Leible win Sr. openers

The Senior Babe Ruth baseball season got underway at VFW stadium Thursday night with the defending co-champs, Optimist and Leible, posting wins.

Leible opened with a 5-0 shutout of the Elks while the Optimist took Security National 6-3.

League action resumes Tuesday with Leible Implement battling Optimist at 6:30 and Security National facing the Elks at 8:30.

Any contestant between the ages of 14 and 18 is eligible for this 36- hole tournament. College students who are enrolled in college before May 1, 1974 are ineligible for participation.

Trophies will be awarded to the winner and runnerup in each age group -- along with first and second place trophies in the championship flight, and a four- man team trophy.

Entry blanks are being mailed out this week to high schools with golf teams, and to country clubs.

Record meet

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — The California Relays, a track meet with as much promise as a national championship, puts world records in jeopardy Saturday.

Rarely have their been as many challenges in one program.

The classic race of the night figures to be the mile, in which North Carolina's Tony Waldrop faces perhaps his strongest challenge of the year when he runs against five sub-four-minute milers.

Waldrop, who has run nine consecutive sub-four-minute miles this year, is the overwhelming favorite but the winner may well be close to Jim Ryun's world mark of 3 minutes 51.1 seconds.

The newest world record holder, Ivory Crocket, puts his 100-yard dash title of "world's fastest human" on the line against Steve Williams and Tennessee's Reggie Jones. Crockett, the former Southern Illinois University flash, rocketed to a 9.0 clocking two weeks ago at Knoxville, Tenn., and is favored. Other world standards under assault Saturday night are the shot put, 440-hurdles and two women's records, the mile and half mile.

Mary Decker, recovering from a tonsilectomy, still was able to run the women's 880 in 2:04.6 last week at Bakersfield.

New Zealand's Sue Haden, who has run 800 meters in 2:02.0, will provide the opposition as Miss Decker, of Garden Grove, Calif., aims at the world 880 record of 2:02.0.

Francie Larrieu of the Pacific Coast Club goes after the world record in the women's mile, a time of 4:29.5 set last year by Italy's Paola Pigni.

Debbie Heald, former world indoor mile record holder from La Mirada, Calif., clipped off a rapid 4:22.7 time for 1,500 meters last week at Bakersfield and will provide competition for Miss Larrieu.

George Woods, who became the first man in history to surpass 72 feet in the shot indoors last March, aims to break the outdoor world mark in the vent. Woods' teammate, Woods is capable of wiping out the outdoor mark of 71-7.

In the mile, Waldrop, whose 3:53.2 makes him the second fastest American ever, faces stiff tests from front-running Paul Cummings of Brigham Young, who has run 3:56.4 this year, and Tommy Fulton, another pace setter. Waldrop likes to race from behind, as does Mark Schilling of San Jose State and Rick Brown of California.

Garvey writes WFC

PORTLAND (AP) — Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Association, has written to veteran players on World Football League rosters regarding the formation of a players association for the new league, a spokesman for the WFL's Portland Storm said Thursday night.

"It is not beyond the realm of one's imagination to think that the WFL and NFL are already considering a merger," Garvey says in his letter, dated May 17, "and we must move quickly to make certain that the rights of players are protected."

The letter offers use of the NFLPA staff and asks WFL players to sign a statement giving Garvey the right to act as their bargaining agent.

'Fly' ruled ineligible

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Austin Peay's James "Fly" Williams, one of the country's top five basketball scorers during his first two years of college, apparently won't be playing next season because of someone else's mistake.

Williams, who averaged 27.5 points a game last season and 29.5 two years ago, was declared indefinitely ineligible Thursday for intercollegiate competition because the Ohio Valley Conference had misinterpreted NCAA entrance requirements.

"He's being punished for the mistake of someone else," Austin Peay Athletic Director George Fisher said. Fisher blamed OVC Commissioner Art Guepe, and Guepe accepted the responsibility.

"Someone has to take the rap on this and it might as well be me," Guepe said.

Fisher said Williams entered school after taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test. The results of that test were converted, under guidelines designed by the conference, to project Williams' American Collegiate Testing score, he said.

This conversion of test scores, he said, was outlawed by the NCAA in April 1969.

Fisher speculated that athletes at the seven other OVC schools will face the same situation as Williams.

Williams, a 6-foot-5 forward from Brooklyn, N. Y., was not available to newsmen Thursday but issued a statement through Austin Peay assistant coach Lenard Hamilton.

He said he plans to return to Austin Peay this fall and has written to the National Basketball Association and requested that his name be removed from the hardship list.

He said earlier this week he had rejected a $1.5 million offer to play for Denver of the American Basketball Association.

Brewers make Milwaukee famous

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Brewers most famous these days in Milwaukee are the ones that play baseball, not make beer.

Long known as the stronghold of suds, Milwaukee's cup suddenly is running over in the American League East pennant race.

"Pressure is what baseball's all about—and we have a team that can keep the pressure on," said Milwaukee's George Scott after a 7-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers Thursday. "We have guys who can run, guys who hit for average and guys who hit for power. We should keep the pressure on all the time."

Particularly, Milwaukee's racehorse style has caught the fancy of the hometown fans. The Brewers have literally raced into first place in the East race with a running game.

Against the Tigers Thursday, the Brewers stole a club record five bases and had 11 in the four-game series, which they won, 3-1.

In Thursday's other American League games, the Cleveland Indians blanked the Baltimore Orioles 2-0; the California Angels beat the Kansas City Royals 3-1 and the Chicago White Sox stopped the Texas Rangers 9-6.

Scott's bloop triple capped a two-run seventh inning rally that lifted Milwaukee over Detroit. Indians 2, Orioles 0

Gaylord Perry pitched a three-hitter and George Hendrick singled home the only run he needed, leading Cleveland over Baltimore.

Both Cleveland runs off Jim Palmer, 2-5, were unearned with Hendrick's sixth-inning single snapping a 21-inning scoreless string for the Indians.

Angels 3, Royals 1

Bobby Valentine hit a bases loaded sacrifice fly in the seventh inning, scoring Ellie Rodriguez and capping a two-run rally that gave Nolan Ryan and California its victory over Kansas City. White Sox 9, Rangers 6

Carlos May, Ed Herrmann and Ron Santo provided the key hits in three different rallies, leading Chicago over Texas.

Texas slugger Jeff Burroughs hit his 11th homer of the year to drive in his American League-leading 46th run of the baseball season. It also marked the 10th straight game in which he has driven home a run, leaving him one short of the major league record shared by Babe Ruth and Mel Ott.

National League scores: Montreal 5, Pittsburgh 4; San Francisco 7, Los Angeles 6 and San Diego 5, Cincinnati 4 in 13 innings. Rain washed out the game between the New York Mets and Chicago Cubs.

Cars keep him busy

In his own words, A. B. (for Andres Booker) Dixon of 4517 Given is "just a country boy who came to the Big City and made good." From a farm at Dell, Ark., to the used car and battery market of Memphis, he came. And when someone applies that old saw "Would you buy a used car from this man?" to A. B. Dixon, the answer would be "Yes."

A. B. Dixon's office is just an ordinary used- car- and-battery- type office: A concrete floor, battered desk and an ancient green-beige sofa, an electric heater in a corner, a sign or two on thywall ("Make me an offer I can't refuse"), a faded picture of Christ in Gethsemane, a calendar and a string of car keys.

A man walked into the office.

"You know that battery you let me have last week?"

A. B. Dixon looked a bit nonplused. "No," he said, "fill me in."

"Well, you let me have it and this morning it wouldn't work . . . just went Arrr-arrrrrr."

"You got it with ya?"

The man had it out in his car. A. B. Dixon went and got it and gave the man a new battery, no questions asked.

A. B. Dixon was born in Walnut, Miss. (his father, Buford Dixon, still lives there), and moved to Dell, Ark. (between Blytheville and Jonesboro on Arkansas 18). "I grew up there and farmed, cotton and soybeans.

"I was 17 on Pearl Harbor Day (Dec. 7, 1941), the day World War II began, and my wife's (Allene) birthday is Aug. 14, the day it ended. I guess you could say I put down the plow and picked up the rifle. After the war (a Navyman in the South Pacific) I put down the rifle and picked up the plow again."

After 29 years on the farm, A. B. Dixon came to Memphis: "I guess more or less because I wasn 't making any money on the farm ... maybe I was just tired of it."

He went to work for Oakley Ford and then eventually into business for himself.

'Brother Bob' (Ingram), a deacon in the Berclair Baptist Church, as is A. B. Dixon, came in, needing a battery for his truck. A. B. Dixon took time out to put the battery in the truck, and then Brother Bob joined in our yarn swapping. He was planning a trip to Grenada, Miss., to visit his parents.

Then I asked A. B. Dixon, "Have present conditions affected your business?"

"So far, no. I haven't changed prices since June 1, 1970. About the only thing I've done is to add lawnmowers."

Once A. B. Dixon had some gasoline pumps in front of his office, but they disappeared some years ago.

USDA sticks to wheat prediction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is sticking to an earlier prediction of a record wheat crop this year, and reports of dry weather in parts of the nation's breadbasket are causing only mild alarm among government grain watchers.

No revision of 1974 wheat production estimates will be issued by USDA until June 10 when the Crop Reporting Board makes new estimates for a variety of crops.

Meanwhile, a weekly weather report showed Tuesday that "hot, windy weather lowered topsoil moisture to a short supply" in many areas of the central and southern Great Plains. That is the region where winter wheat, planted last fall, is moving rapidly into harvest pipelines.

Nixon administration officials are counting heavily on a record wheat crop this year to help cool off food prices by making more grain available for export and domestic use. A record corn crop also is predicted, but actual field estimates will not be ready until August.

Another report on Monday, a summary of a forthcoming wheat situation analysis, reiterated earlier optimism. It also noted that wheat prices have dropped sharply, mainly in anticipation of the big harvest expected this summer.

Further market flurries occurred Tuesday, with Kansas City cash wheat dropping to $3.40 to $3.75 per bushel range. That represented a big decline from a peak of $6.20 per bushel for winter wheat delivered to Kansas City last Feb. 25.

The weekly report said winter wheat was in satisfactory condition in central and eastern Kansas, but added that topsoil moisture — needed for final development — was short in the western one-third of the state.

On May 8, the department estimated the 1974 winter wheat crop at a record of more than 1.6 billion bushels, up 27 per cent from last year. The Kansas crop, which normally accounts for one-fifth of more of total U.S. production, was estimated at a record 406.8 million bushels.

The Kansas estimate has been protested by some authorites in the state as being much too high in view of poor growing conditions in major parts of the area. But USDA officials say no revision will be made, if any, until the June 10 report is ready.

Officials said in this week's weather summary that the Kansas wheat crop as of last weekend had developed ahead of last year, with 75 per cent of it headed, compared with 25 per cent at the same time in 1973. Wheat harvest usually starts in south central Kansas in early June.

The report also said wheat and oat harvest in Texas gained momentum and that the first cuttings had been reported in Oklahoma.

Wheat in Nebraska was in "good to excellent" shape as of the weekend, the report said, although moisture was short in the western half of the state.

Country fans like horns

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "I remember when they used to tell me 'Country people don't like horns and pop people don't like country music.' But I knew I had a good idea. I just knew I did," Danny Davis remembers.

It was six years ago that Danny first assembled the Nashville Brass. But the group had been alive for seven years before that as a dream he couldn't sell.

For seven years, the story goes, Danny would stand up in RCA board meetings and tell other company executives he wanted to put horns in country music. And for several years, they laughed.

It was the RCA joke.

Davis came to this country capital as the RCA executive in charge of the Nashville product. It was here he met Chet Atkins, a man not bound by old taboos. Atkins said "Try it."

In October of 1968, Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass produced their first album. Within three months, the factory was wondering where all the records had gone.

So much for history.

"I guess you can just chalk it up to Irish tenacity," Danny remarked with a smile.

Definitely Irish, he's an oddity in country music. Born in Randolph, Mass., "I came up through the jazz era, during the days of the Big Band sound. When I came here, I was an executive and thought my days of performing were probably over," he said.

"One thing we try to do on stage is entertain that audience. I expect a musician to be an entertainer. I put the show together so the guys can project their personalities and be individuals."

The men in the Brass don't seem in any hurry to leave. Only three of the original group have left Danny in the six years they've been together.

Danny puts together one of the livliest, funniest and most sophisticated shows to come out of the Music City. He modestly calls himself a "half-way comic," but he manages to avoid the country cornball brand of humor.

There are three doctorate degrees on his stage; four have masters' degrees. "Then there's Curtis McPeake, the banjo picker, who can't read music," Danny laughs.

"The musicianship is embarassingly high," he says.

But Davis keeps the melody pure.

"I think one of the reasons the Big Bands died was because they sophisticated themselves right past their audience," Danny explained.

"Everybody loves instruments ... pure, beautiful music. Do you realize that if Irving Berlin were alive today and brought a song like "I'll Be Loving You Always" to a publisher.

Energy crisis reason for post office change

CHARLESTON -- Tentatively, beginning June 22, the Charleston post office, which currently dispatches and receives four loads of mail a day, will send and receive only two loads a day.

Mail is currently delivered to the Charleston post office at 6 a.m. and 3 p.m., and dispatched from Charleston at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Under the new system, the 11 a.m. outgoing and 3 p.m. incoming mail dispatches will be ended.

A small portion of Charleston's mail will be affected. Those customers holding post office boxes may have to wait until the next morning for mail that now comes with the 3 p.m. delivery to Charleston.

"The receipt of mail in the afternoon is about 90 per cent advertising," said Charleston Postmaster E. R. Putnam Jr. Putnam said the ending of the 3 p.m. delivery to Charleston would affect fewer than 100 pieces of first-class mail a day.

No residents should be affected by the ending of the 11 a.m. dispatch from Charleston.

"The mid-morning dispatch of mail that comes to Sikeston doesn't go out until evening any way," said Donald Pasaka, sectional postmaster at the Sikeston post office. Since both current dispatches of mail from Charleston leave the Sikeston post office at the same time, mail service from Charleston to other areas will not be slowed, Pasaka said.

"Basically, the reason we are going to this is to conserve energy," Pasaka said, adding that the move was part of a national program.

Pasaka said the June 22 date was set as "tentative" because some of the "star" routes — postal routes contracted out to private individuals — are being eliminated and, consequently, consolidated into larger routes. The rebidding of contracts and paper work involved in consolidation could consequently affect the date of the postal service change Pasaka said.

HOWEVER, some people can take advantage of a fella's good nature as Pasha discovers when John moves in to push the patient canine away altogether.

ENOUGH'S enough feels Pasha who is forced to growl a little and hopes to maybe frighten John away but the courageous two-year old is unaffected by the confrontation and departs only when he's had his fill and Pasha learns that there are some people who take advantage of good guys.

Spiritism Has Big Following In Brazil

By ELAINE DE ABREU

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Spiritism — a religion that believes in clairvoyance and reincarnation — is active in this South American country. But Brazilian mediums are critical of U.S. spiritualists who charge money for seances.

"Mediums should always work for free," said Reinaldo Soares Pinheiro, general secretary of the Sao Paulo Spiritist Federation. "The Gospel says that mediumistic powers are given free. But we know that some mediums in the United States charge for their services."

Insurance consolidation may save schools money

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) -- Officials of state-supported colleges and universities told a special subcommittee of the Missouri Legislature Thursday that in some cases a savings can be made by consolidating insurance policies of the various schools.

"If we could get a policy that suits all the needs," said Bob Peace, business manager of Southwest Missouri State University, "then from what I know about insurance, you could be able to reduce premiums by consolidating the risks."

Peace told the subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee that policies covering fire and automobile insurance, bonding requirements, general liability and workmen's compensation insurance could be most easily consolidated.

"I think the need for some flexibility would remain on policies where you need a particular kind of coverage for a short term," he said.

Dale O. Bowling, vice president for business management at the University of Missouri, told the committee the university had not been notified about the possibility of consolidating workmen's compensation coverage through the state and was consequently spending nearly $350,000 annually for that coverage.

Bowling said, however, he felt it was conceivable that a savings on the workmen's compensation premium could be realized through consolidation by the state.

"We are interested in doing anything that will save the state money," he told the committee.

The committee heard officials from the state schools today and had scheduled testimony by the State Division of Insurance and the attorney general's office for Friday.

"We want to work with the university people to ascertain if we can save the state some money in the insurance program," said committee cochairman Clarence Heflin, D-Independce.

Burlison defends system

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In commencement addresses this week, Missouri 10th District Rep. Bill D. Burlison staunchly defended the American two party system of government.

Burlison was commencement speaker at Meadow Heights High School in Bollinger County, Mo., Thursday night and at Jefferson Junior College at Hillsboro in Jefferson County, Mo., on Friday.

Although the American style of democracy has been developed by the two- party system he said the system is now struggling for survival. "To succeed, each party must have a substantial nucleus of dedicated adherents. This support is disappearing," Burlison said.

In quoting surveys by Dr. George Gallup since 1940, Burlison traced the growth of independents from an initial standing of 20 per cent of the electorate to its present strength of 49 per cent. The same surveys show the Republican party going from 38 per cent to 14 per cent and the Democrats from 42 per cent to 37 percent

In challenging the students to participate in government and more particularly in a political party, the Cape Girardeau congressman concluded, "I happen to be among those who believe in the two- party system and feel that it has helped to make America great ... We trust that you will do your part in nurturing this system. I assure you that we, and the nation, will be grateful."

Wootens return to First Assembly

First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway, has announced the return of the Rev. and Mrs. Loren Wooten as their pastors.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Wooten previously came to Sikeston in 1953, and it was under their leadership that the present auditorium was erected. The Wootens resigned in 1959 to assume the pastoral responsibilities at Berea Temple (Assembly of God) in St. Louis.

During the intervening years, he has served as assistant district superintendent of the Southern Missouri District and has been involved in overseas evangelism in the Samoan Islands and the Philippine Islands.

The Wootens returned to Sikeston after three years of full- time evangelistic work which took them to many parts of the country for revival crusades.

Last Sunday was Welcome Back Sunday at First Assembly. After the morning service, a fellowship dinner was held in the basement of the church.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Wooten will live in the church parsonage at 200 Hardin St.

Film planned Sunday at Oran First Baptist

ORAN — "Isn't It Good to Know", a new film that abandons traditional story lines to involve the viewer in the life- experiences of real people, will be shown Sunday at First Baptist Church. The latest film from World Wide Pictures, producers of "Time to Run," will be shown once beginning at 7:30 p.m.

"Isn't It Good to Know" was edited and directed by Michael Hooser, a young 26 year - old filmmaker who brings provocative new techniques to his first major film. Using a varying number of images on the same screen, Hooser creates a multi-media effect that draws the viewer into the picture. Included are scenes from the Dino De Laurentiis production of "Barabbas", through the courtesy of Columbia Pictures.

Lutheran loyalty rally set June 2

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A meeting billed as a Lutheran loyalty rally has been scheduled June 2 on the Lincoln University campus here, a spokesman for the Concerned Laymen of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod said today.

He said the rally will support the church's orthodox position in the conflict that has resulted in most students and faculty members leaving the campus of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, the synod's largest seminary.

Most students began a walkout Jan. 21, one day [illegible] Dr. John Tietjen, the school's president, was fired by the Board of Control. Most of the school's faculty followed the students in the walkout, and the dissidents have set up a socalled seminary-in-exile at St. Louis University and the Eden Theological Seminary in St. Louis.

Dr. Tietjen was dismissed after being accused of allowing the teaching of false doctrine at the Seminary.

The featured speakers at the Jefferson City rally were expected to include the Rev. Robert Sauer, assistant to the president of the synod; Eugene Fincke, a senior member of the Board of [illegible] St. Louis [illegible] Rev. Thomas Baker of University City and the Rev. Walter Hoffman of Olivette.

Similar meetings have been held in other parts of the country where the Missouri Synod has churches.

Singing event set Saturday

The United Quartet of St. Louis will be featured on a gospel singing program at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Pentecostal Holiness Church, 328 W. North St.

Local singers will also participate in the program, according to the Rev. Freeman Parker, pastor.

Scripture: Acts 25-26

WHEN IS A MAN REALLY FREE?

One of the most discussed and misunderstood words used today is "freedom." Our courts are required to define this word frequently and in most of their verdicts disagreements follow.

"The only freedom which deserves the name is that of pursuing our own good in our own way, so long as we do not attempt to deprive others of theirs, or impede their efforts to obtain it."

Thus wrote John Stuart Mill in 1859. Yet Plato wrote many centuries earlier that, "The excess of liberty, whether in states or individuals, seems only to pass into excess of slavery."

And today's lesson from Paul concerns this conflict between freedom and slavery. One term can better be understood in relationship to the other.

Many debates on freedom today revert to President Franklin Roosevelt's famous 1941 talk when he called for four freedoms for all persons: freedom of speech and expression, freedom of worship, freedom from want, and freedom from fear.

Three decades later the world has fewer freedoms than it had in 1941. The United States still provides more freedom for its people than most nations.

Paul warned the world about such problems. He learned about slavery in the physical sense, yet he could preach about the freedom of the soul if one only believed in God.

Paul was arrested and held in captivity in three cities (Jerusalem, Caesarea, and Rome) for five years. Still he never wavered in his faith and never sought favors of the authorities.

The greatest asset Paul possessed was his faith. His message was simple, based on repentance, faith, and good works. He told and retold his message.

Always Paul defended his ministry. He reminded the Jews that it was all in accordance with Moses and the stories of the prophets. And he always returned to his own conversion to Christ's preachings.

Paul attempted to prove to the people that sin produces slavery. To be freed from this bondage, one need only turn to God. Paul believed those who rejected God were in bondage to spiritual ignorance and indecision.

Freedom here is the power to do what we want to do. Paul exercised his right of freedom by repeating his message each time he was arrested. When hauled before King Agrippa, Paul used the court as a sounding board. He spoke before the entire audience and in most cases the local authorities shifted the responsibility for handing Paul to the authorities in Rome.

Even then there were those who placed greater stress on the legal angles, less on the spiritual. In most instances Paul's case seemed hopeless since he had become the political hostage of his day.

Threats exist today that endanger our freedoms. Some fear that computers are making decisions for us. We admit the need for some restraints, such as laws controlling or driving on highways. Still we acknowledge the fact that there are millions of people held under some form of bondage today.

For a fuller discussion of freedom and bondage one needs only to turn to the plight of many small nations, the American Indians, racial minorities, and other groups in our society.

These people cry for freedom.

Paul cried for freedom too.

Paul showed the way through our love for God, believing that our love begets love in return. Many persons have practiced such love and have achieved love in return.

We fight wars to gain freedom. Paul's method was simpler. Believe in God, give Him your love, and your soul will be free.

THE BIBLE

136. Saul Grows Jealous of David

David's heroic defeat of Goliath spurred the army of Israel to a great victory over the Philistines. As the victors returned, the women came out singing and playing tambourines and cymbals. However, their song irritated Saul: "And the women answered one another as they played, and said, Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands." (I Samuel 18:7)

Saul was displeased because he feared that next the people would make David their king. From that time on, Saul kept a jealous watch over young David. On the next day David came in, as he usually did, to play the harp to soothe Saul's troubled feelings. Saul, who held a spear in his hand, threw it at David, aiming to pin him to the wall, but David leaped aside and escaped. He also avoided a second spear hurled by Saul. Consequently, Saul grew even more jealously afraid of David.

"Therefore Saul removed him from him, and made him his captain over a thousand: and he went out and came in before the people. And David behaved himself wisely in all his ways; and the Lord was with him." (I Samuel 18:13-14)

In 1830, the first passenger railroad in the United States began service between Baltimore, Maryland and Elliott's Mills, 13 miles away.

In 1844, Samuel F. B. Morse transmitted the first public message by telegraph — from Washington to Baltimore.

In 1883, the Brooklyn Bridge in New York was opened.

In 1941, in World War II, the German battleship Bismarck sank the British battle cruiser Hood in the North Atlantic, with a loss of 1,300 lives.

In 1962, Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter became the second American to fly in orbit as he circled the earth three times.

Ten years ago: Egypt announced that the Soviet Union had agreed to extend a loan of $27 million for the United Arab Republic's new five-year plan.

Five years ago: The U.S. Apollo Ten astronauts were headed toward a splashdown in the Pacific after completing man's nearest inspection of the surface of the moon.

One year ago: In Reykjavik, Iceland, several thousand demonstrators smashed windows at the British Embassy to protest Britain's challenge to Iceland's claimed 50-mile fishing limit.

Today's birthdays: Democratic Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas is 65. Folk singer Bob Dylan is 33.

Thought for today: The nearer the dawn the darker the night — Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, American poet, 1807-1882.

The case of the pretty secretary

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Susan was a comely looking secretary who kept up her appearance to keep down her job. Her preoccupation with her makeup, however, proved disasterous.

During a coffee break in the company lounge, and while painting on fresh lipstick with the concentration of a Rembrandt, she became so engrossed with what she was doing that she failed to pay attention to where she was sitting.

The result? Susan slipped off the chair and severely injured her back. Out of work for several months there after as a consequence, she filed a claim for a Workman's Compensation award.

"We'd like to help you," she was told, "but we can't. The accident happened while you were primping up. Since putting on lipstick had nothing to do with your job, you weren't injured during the course of your employment as required."

"Of course primping up was part of my job," insisted Susan. "Looking pretty is part of being a secretary. Psychologically, it makes her work more efficient."

Her claim turned down, Susan took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the pretty secretary to collect a Workman's Compensation award?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that an employe is generally entitled to a Workman's Compensation award if injured while performing some act for the mutual benefit of the employer and employe.

In this case, noted the judge, Susan was injured while performing an act for both her own and her employer's benefit since applying lipstick, in a place provided by her employer, added to her self- esteem and thereby permitted her to perform her job more efficiently.

(Based upon a 1959 Missouri St. Louis court of Appeals Decision)

THE MAKING OF A SITAR, the elaborately decorated traditional stringed instrument of India, begins with something very simple. A craftsman begins the process with dried gourd shells, left, which may have been seasoned for several years. Patience and talent are required for the intricate carving, center, which transforms a gourd into a work of art, right, as well as an instrument.

Orioles at Yankees Will Be Game-Of-The-Week Offering

The New York Yankees, the new faces of 1974 in the American League East, will offer a coast- to- coast TV audience a look at a flock of new players and a different home ball park Saturday, May 25 (1 p.m. CDT), when Major League Baseball's Game- of- the- Week brings together the Baltimore Orioles and the Yankees on the NBC Television Network.

The game, which will be played in New York's Shea Stadium-- the Yankees' home grounds while Yankee Stadium in the Bronx is having its face lifted-- will show the Yankees with 12 players they did not have at the end of the 1973 season. That doesn't include the manager, Bill Virdon, who succeeded Ralph Houk as the top brain in the Yankee dugout.

The notable additions the Orioles will encounter in their first visit this season to Shea Stadium number Chris Chambliss, a first baseman with a busy bat, Lou Piniella, an outfielder with power, and a young shortstop named Jim Mason.

The Orioles, the team generally favored to win the top spot in the American League East, have their usual style, on the mound, at the plate and in the field.

Brooks Robinson, the fanciest fielding third baseman in the last decade of major league play, is back doing business with his accustomed flair.

Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek will do the commentary on the primary game in New York; the backup contest-- St. Louis Cardinals at Chicago Cubs-- will be broadcast by Jim Simpson and Maury Wills.

8:00 CBS— MARY TYLER MOORE— Ted Baxter always dreams that some day he'll meet his idol, CBS News Correspondent Walter Cronkite, and the meeting would lead to his own fame and fortune in New York. Ted does meet Cronkite— but the occasion is not as auspicious in reality as it is in Ted's dream. Cronkite makes a brief guest appearance on the show.

Monday Night Baseball

May 27 Baltimore Orioles at K.C. Royals

The Baltimore Orioles and the Kansas City Royals, baseball teams with an excellent chance to make it into the League Championship series in October, will clash in a game to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network when Monday Night Baseball resumes May 27 (7:15 p.m. CDT) in Kansas City's Royals Stadium. Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek will handle the play- by- play and color commentary; Joe Garagiola, whose "Baseball World" will precede the game at 8 p.m., will be the Guest Commentator.

Even though it is stretching a point at this stage in the season, the Orioles and Royals have the type of personnel to carry them all the way. Both clubs have rosters with depth, balance and just enough youth sprinkled through the batting order to keep the veterans hustling.

The Orioles have a pair of speedy young outfielders in Al Bumbry and Rich Coggins, along with an established pitching staff headed by Jim Palmer, Mike Cuellar and Brooks Robinson.

The Royals, not quite so well established, made a legitimate run at the champion Oakland Athletics last year and are back with an even stronger team this season. They point to centerfielder Amos Otis and John Mayberry, a slugging first baseman, as the bellwethers of their pennant hopes.

The backup game, to be telecast in Kansas City and Baltimore will match the Houston Astros and the Montreal Expos in Montreal. Commentary will be handled by Jim Simpson and Maury Wills.

Columbo in Sunday Mystery Movie

PETER FALK
Lt. Columbo in 'Columbo'
'NBC Sunday Mystery Movie'
Sundays, NBC Television Network

Peter Falk has good reason to feel proud as he enters his third season as star of the acclaimed "Columbo" series on the NBC Television Network's "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie."

He has won two Emmy Awards. His four Emmy nominations include Best Actor for "The Law and Mr. Jones" in 1961, followed by a 1962 nomination for "Price of Tomatoes" (which he won). In 1972 he was nominated and won the Emmy for his portrayal of Detective Lt. Columbo. This year, he again was nominated in the same category. In addition, he received two Oscar nominations: in 1961 for "Murder, Inc." and in 1962 for "Pocketful of Miracles."

If it weren't for Eva LeGallienne, Peter might never have seriously considered acting. He was employed by the State of Connecticut as an efficiency expert when he decided to study under Miss LeGallienne. He played the title role in "Richard III" at the White Barn Theatre in Westport, Conn., and it didn't take Miss LeGallienne long to recognize Falk's talents. At her urging, he quit his job and went to New York in 1955, determined to become an actor.

In less than a month, he landed the choice role of the bartender in an off-Broadway production of Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh." In rapid succession he appeared in "The Lady's Not For Burning," "Purple Dust" and made his Broadway debut in George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan."

The tough- talking actor holds a master's degree in public administration from Syracuse University. He also earned a B. A. in political science. He attended Hamilton College in Clinton, N. Y., briefly, before a year's tour as a merchant seaman.

Born in New York City, Falk spent his youth in Ossining, N. Y. As a high school student he won letters in track, baseball and basketball. He also emerged as a straight "A" student, was class president for three years and a member of the debate squad which placed second in the state.

Falk likes his "Columbo" commitment of eight shows a season which allows him to perform in stage productions and motion pictures. In 1972 he starred in Neil Simon's hit, "The Prisoner of Second Avenue," on Broadway and won applause from the critics.

About "Columbo," Falk says: "I love the character. He has no pretension, is disarming, preoccupied and has a steel-trap mind." The same words could well be used to describe Falk.

ROCK HUDSON
Stewart McMillan in 'McMillan & Wife'
'NBC Sunday Mystery Movie'
Sundays, NBC Television Network

Handsome, broad- shouldered Rock Hudson enters his third season this Fall as the star of the highly successful series, "McMillan & Wife," on the NBC Television Network.

One of Hollywood's top motion picture stars, Hudson is now strongly entrenched in the television industry as well with his portrayal of San Francisco Commissioner of Police Stewart McMillan.

Hudson was born in Winnetka, Ill. He joined the Navy in 1944 and saw two years of service in the South Pacific.

After being discharged, he found work in a Los Angeles electrical appliance shop while he sought entrance to the University of Southern California on the GI Bill of Rights. Failing this, he became a truck driver and established residence in Hollywood.

Determined to become an actor, he had some photographs taken and landed his first small, non-speaking part in "Fighter Squadron." Raoul Walsh, who kept him under personal contract for a year, sold the contract to Universal in 1949.

With a slow build- up, and a long list of credits, he hit the top in "Magnificent Obsession," starring opposite Jane Wyman. The 1955 role won him 14 national and international awards.

A few of the many leading ladies who followed Miss Wyman were Elizabeth Taylor, Lauren Bacall, Doris Day, Arlene Dahl, Anne Baxter, Julie Adams, Barbara Rush, Agnes Moorehead and Ursula Thiess.

"Giant," "Pillow Talk," "Lover Come Back," "Pretty Maids All in a Row" and the soon- to- be-released "Showdown" are a few of the 59 movies he has completed to date.

Hudson resides in a spacious Spanish- style Beverly Hills home (in which he has lived for 11 years). He is the proud owner of a wall- to- wall record collection which includes a vast selection of Spanish music. "I enjoy music, especially Spanish composers-- always have," he says.

Hudson values his privacy and personal friends very highly but is devoted to his fans and public. As a former star- struck kid himself, he says, "In all honesty, I can understand that type of feeling. I know what it's like to stand in awe of an actor or actress."

He is often accused of giving a yes- or- no type of interview which sometimes is mistaken as a dislike for people. "I like people," he says, "But I don't like talking about myself."

An outdoorsman, Hudson enjoys camping and skiing. He also likes to read, play bridge and spend time working in his greenhouse.

Honor The Father

SIDEWALK FILM— MAKING-- BLEAK DAY, BLEECKER STREET

At 11:00 AM on a cold Tuesday in a dusky December lengthening into a wet winter, Bleecker Street between Jones and Cornelia in New York City's West Greenwich Village, an offside remnant of downtown bohemia, flowed with the expected urgencies of daily life. It was death scheduled to be shammed, later.

In one hour and 45 minutes, it would explode raucously, flamingly, in counterfeit, from a fast- moving long black car-- on direction. For now, the lean limo endlessly tracked the two marked victims up and down Bleecker Street, back and forth-- on direction.

Since 9:30 that moisture- charged morning, that direction had stemmed from a tall, husky man wearing a blue- and- beige woolen stocking hat that hugged his forehead, and an oyster- white, three- quarter- length storm coat. Director Paul Wendkos was intently rehearsing his location scenes for "Honor Thy Father," based on Gay Talese's best- selling book about underworld life, being filmed from Lewis John Carlino's script.

To be rebroadcast on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, May 31 (8:00- 10:00 pm, CDT) in color on the CBS Television Network, the film stars Joseph Bologna and Brenda Vaccaro, with special guest star Raf Vallone and Richard Castellano.

From an hour and a half still earlier (no one had advised him of a changed 8:00 AM work "call"), producer Harold D. Cohen had been around the corner, on Jones Street, voluntarily helping a bookdealer flooded out by a burst water main carry to safety his Florentined out- of- prints. At a back table in a Bleecker Street coffee shop sat actor Joe De Santis, sopping up the wet leaves of one book, a choicely illustrated volume on medieval German art.

Down Bleecker, towards Cornelia, a tailor semi-crouched in his shop entrance. Toiling in the shadowless light, he basted away on a coat, Mme. Defarge- like, absently nodding at Wendkos' recurring street trials.

Passersby and bystanders alike were minor figures at practice, most being film "extras" afoot for atmosphere. Area residents remained aloof-- uncurious.

Author Talese stood by, too, outside a salami- strung grocery window across from the Bleecker Street bakery Wendkos had targeted as his action site. Talese was curious-- curious to see how a movie "hit" was made.

Special- effects and make- up men had rigged the chests of the two actors to be gunned down (Henry Ferrentino, Frank Albanese) wih "squibs," small explosive charges loaded with prop blood, connected by wires to eight tenpenny nails hammered into a one- inch pine slab, off camera. Rachet a screwdriver blade down the line and-- Blam!-- in counterpoint.

Virtually no two witnesses were to agree later on the sequence of sights and sounds when, out of nowhere, materialized the previously invisible crowd. Some 200 insistent onlookers rushed in, at gunshot, instantly overwhelming the scene, their stampede presumptuously usurping Wendkos' directorial prerogative to "cut" the action. He none the less had it on film.

At 11:00 AM, however, it was still 105 minutes away from Wendkos' command for "Camera...Action!" Later, with the ebb and flow of the "Honor Thy Father" film company, Bleecker Street, between Jones and Cornelia, reverted to an unperturbed stream of city life.

Ross given 55 years in prison

CHARLESTON — Robert Ross, 23, of San Diego, Calif., a former New Madrid resident found guilty May 15 by a Circuit Court jury of felonious assault and armed robbery, was sentenced Wednesday by Judge Marshall Craig to 25 years on the assault charge and 30 years on the robbery charge, with sentences to run consecutively.

The charges against Ross stem from a Dec. 4, 1973 assault with a gun on Willie Hardin, 68, of rural New Madrid and Willie Glispie, 30, of Sikeston Route Four and the armed robbery of the D.C. Barry Grocery and Service Station near Kewanee.

Calvin Ross, 23, of St. Louis and Charles Williams, 31, of New Madrid face trial on the same charges in their change of venue cases from New Madrid County. Trial of Williams is scheduled on May 29, and Calvin Ross will also be tried in Mississippi County on June 5.

A Circuit Court jury Wednesday awarded $29,200 to Mrs. Irene Carter Thweatt of Paducah, Ky., in a personal injuries and damages suit against Elmer Fred Haefner of Imperial.

The suit against Haefner was filed in connection with an automobile accident which occurred on Highway 60 near Wyatt on Sept. 3, 1971. Haefner's car skidded on wet pavement and struck the Thweatt car in a curve. Mrs. Thweatt was driving the car and her husband, Landon Lee Thweatt, was a passenger.

In the suit, Thweatt sought damages of $25,000 and Mrs. Thweatt sought damages of $75,000.

Ground work laid here for area port authority

Sikeston would be one of the major beneficiaries of a regional port authority, Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, said Thursday night.

Spradling made the remark during a discussion with several area leaders who had gathered at Ramada Inn to lay ground work for a port authority.

Cape Girardeau would benefit most, Spradling said, with Sikeston close behind. He cited Sikeston as a natural location for industry attracted by the port facilities because the city has two interstate highways and two railroads.

Any community can benefit from the port authority bill, according to Charles Southern, a Caruthersville attorney.

Cities and counties located along navigable waterways have been given the power to create port authorities and port districts under a bill passed during the recently completed session of the State Legislature. Spradling and Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin, D-Hornersville, were instrumental in getting the bill through the Legislature.

Spradling said Gov. Christopher Bond has not signed the bill yet, but is expected to do so.

The bill allows port authorities to own, lease and maintain recreation facilities, terminals, terminal facilities, warehouses and any other type of port facility needed.

Locations for possible ports would include Scott County, just south of Cape Girardeau, New Madrid County and Pemiscot County. Much of the land would probably need to be filled in.

The port authority may not compete with private enterprise and is designed to foster its growth, according to Southern.

However, the bill does give the port authority the power to operate a facility or warehouse if the firm renting or buying port property defaults. The port authority may operate the property for one year and then must dispose of it.

The group discussion centered on establishing a regional port authority including the six river counties of Pemiscot, New Madrid, Mississippi, Scott, Cape Girardeau and Perry.

The regional authority would be divided into two three-county districts and the districts would be subdivided by city or county authorities.

It will cost at least $50,000 to establish a three-county district, Spradling said. Funds can come through gifts, contributions and revenue bonds.

Under the bill, gifts from individuals are tax deductible. In addition, cities can contribute funds to get the port started.

Once the port authority is begun, facilities can be constructed with financing

3 break-ins investigated

CHARLESTON — Three break-ins occurred sometime Thursday night or early today on East Marshall Street and are being investigated by police.

A break-in at Ponder Chevrolet and Buick Co., 1010 E. Marshall St., was discovered about 7 a.m. today by Don Hequembourg, shop foreman. A metal door facing was pryed back, allowing the door to open, to get into the building, where a company cutting torch was used to open the safe. Approximately $247 was taken from a safe and vending machine in the building.

At 7:27 a.m., a break-in at Charleston Farm Store, 902 E. Marshal St., was reported by Manager Rene DeKriek. No signs of forcible entry were discovered. About $35 in cash and three chain saws valued at $579.85 were stolen.

Kenneth Walker, manager of B & H Auto Supply Inc., 810 E. Marshall St., reported a break-in to police at 7:40 a.m. A window on the west side of the building was pryed open to get inside, and tools valued at $1,151.22, plus $24 in pennies, were taken.

Police raid is unfruitful

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police searching for Patricia Hearst conducted a predawn raid on a Hollywood home, startling two women who were said to match descriptions of Miss Hearst and Symbionese Liberation Army fugitive Emily Harris.

Two sleepy women in pajamas emerged as a force of 50 to 60 police leveled shotguns and tear gas rifles at the house, but police Sgt. Gene Ingram said the women had no connection with the terrorist SLA.

He said police had acted on an anonymous tip, and that one of the women matched a rough description of Mrs. Harris, who is being sought along with her husband, William, and the newspaper heiress.

Meanwhile, police and FBI agents continued without success their massive search for Miss Hearst and two Symbionese Liberation Army companions. Pleas for her to surrender increased.

"Throw away those guns!" urged the Hearst-owned San Francisco Examiner. "If you just let yourself be killed it is going to be a waste; your whole thing is going to be a waste," said a taped plea issued by Patricia's two younger sisters, Anne, 18, and Vicki, 17.

Referring to last Friday's fiery shootout in Los Angeles in which six SLA members died, Vicki said: "I just don't want that to happen to you." But she added: "I'm telling you right now the police and the FBI aren't all that sympathetic anymore. And they've taken a lot of trash from these guys (the SLA). And I just don't think they are going to sit around and take much more of it."

The search for Miss Hearst and William and Emily Harris is centered in southern California. But the rapid series of raids on suspected SLA hideouts which characterized last weekend's developments have subsided, indicating authorities may have lost the immediate trail of the three fugitives, all of whom face possible life in prison.

Felony charges including assault, robbery and kidnaping were filed Wednesday against Miss Hearst and the Harrises, a white couple the FBI has said are the last SLA members it seeks.

Meanwhile, one of Miss Hearsts' alleged victims testified for an hour Thursday as a federal grand jury opened its investigation of an April 15 SLA bank robbery in San Francisco. Police said Thomas Matthews, 18, was held captive for 12 hours last week by Miss Hearst and the Harrises when the three became involved in an alleged shoplifting attempt at a suburban Los Angeles sporting goods store.

A source close to the investigation said Matthews was a "good witness." Authorities say he told them that Miss Hearst declared she was a voluntary participant in the bank robbery in which two persons were wounded.

Poole, a U.S. attorney for Northern California from 1959 to 1970, was sharply critical of Los Angeles Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch, who said when he filed the charges against her that he believed Miss Hearst was the first kidnp victim ever to become a kidnap suspect.

Thurman bound over on possession charge

CHARLESTON — Monty Thurman of Charleston was bound over to Circuit Court on a charge of possession of controlled substance (marijuana over 35 grams) following a preliminary hearing Thursday in Magistrate Court before Judge T. J. Brown Jr.

Thurman, who is free on $5,000 bond and scheduled to appear in Circuit Court June 11, was arrested April 26 on North Main Road in Charleston and charged after about two pounds of marijuana were found in his car.

Testifying during the preliminary were Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons and Gordon Galemore, juvenile officer and deputy sheriff.

Galemore testified he received a call about 6:30 p.m. April 26 from an unidentified person, who informed him Thurman was going to Cape Girardeau later that night to pick up a quantity of marijuana. Galemore said he notified Sheriff Simmons of the call and that later that evening he, Simmons and Deputy Sheriff Mike Baughman staked out the main entrances to town.

Galemore said he was contacted by radio by Simmons about 11:20 p.m. and informed that Thurman had been stopped on North Main Road. When he arrived at the scene, he said Thurman was handcuffed and standing outside his car.

Galemore said he saw a brown paper bag with one end partially torn open lying in the middle of the front seat. He said plastic bags were inside the brown bag and what appeared to be marijuana was inside the plastic bags.

Sheriff Simmons testified he was in the car, parked on North Main Road April 26 about 10:30 p.m., when he observed Thurman's car coming into town. He said he pursued the car and stopped Thurman in front of the Vernon Goodin home and at that time advised Thurman he was under arrest for investigation of possession of a control substance.

Simmons said Thurman at first refused to let the officers search his car but later at the sheriff's office he changed his mind and consented to having his car searched.

According to Simmons, the brown paper bag found in the front seat of Thurman's car contained two plastic bags with marijuana, which were later taken to the Southeast Missouri Crime Laboratory in Cape Girardeau for analysis.

In a trial before Judge Brown, Willis Pasley of Charleston was found guilty of common assault and fined $10, plus $20 costs. Pasley was ruled guilty of assaulting Jacob Edward Estes with his fists.

An attorney was appointed to represent Willie James (Bango) Evans of Charleston on a charge of burglary and larceny and bond was set at $2,500. Evans is accused of breaking into the home of Henry Oliver George, 109 W. Vine St., Charleston, on May 11 and stealing a .22 - caliber pistol and $200 in cash.

Larry Dale Houston of East Prairie entered a plea of guilty to a charge of possession of a controlled substance (marijuana) and was fined $100 and costs. A 30- day jail sentence will be suspended upon payment of the fine and costs by May 31 and Houston will be placed on one- year probation.

DON'T GAG
FEDERAL WORKERS

A prime lesson from the tragedies of Watergate is that a public official's first duty is to his conscience, not to his agency or boss. Unfortunately, it is a lesson that seems to have been lost on the Supreme Court which has handed down two decisions which, in effect, gag federal workers from criticizing either their bosses or their agencies.

In one vote, the court upheld a federal statute under which a federal employee can be dismissed or suspended for the vague reason of "such cause as will promote the efficiency of the service."

And in a narrow 5-4 decision, the high court ruled that the government could fire a worker without giving him a full trial- type hearing.

Now, it is no secret that the federal bureaucracy is a restful haven for too many men and women who don't earn their keep. A good bit of that deadwood could be eliminated forthwith, we are sure, with no detriment to the country whatever.

That said, however, it must be observed that many of the most flagrant cases of government waste, overspending, and other wrongdoing have come to public attention because public servants could not in good conscience condone what they saw. If high-ranking federal officials are allowed to summarily fire their subordinates based on the flimsy, ambiguous reasons indicated in the Supreme Court's rulings, government workers will understandably be fearful of stepping forth when they observe improper actions by their superiors.

The loyalty of a public servant — at the local, state or federal level — should belong first to the citizens whose taxes support him. Hopefully, despite the court's decisions, fairness will still prevail to encourage government workers to let their consciences guide their actions.

THE CABLE FABLE IN SEARCH OF AN ENDING

The continuing story that asks the question, "Can a little idea from out of the sticks find happiness as the rival of the big television networks?" may be reaching a climax.

The idea, whose time keeps coming but never quite seems to arrive, is cable television, or pay TV, which began by piping in clear television pictures to folks whose reception was garbled by mountains or tall buildings or by their distance from the broadcast source.

The climax is a decision expected soon from the Federal Communications Commission on whether pay TV should have the right to bid for late-run Hollywood movies or live sports events such as a Super Bowl or World Series. These shows would then be offered to homes with cable TV, either for a flat fee per show or per month.

The over- the - air stations supported by advertising fear that they would begin losing large numbers of viewers affluent enough or interested enough to afford pay TV. With audiences declining, advertisers would start losing interest in sponsoring the big, expensive movies and sports events now provided free to the great mass of TV watching families.

Already, they point out, we have seen heavyweight championship fights disappear from free television, where the telecasts were paid for by advertisers. Instead, boxing fans must now purchase expensive tickets and go to a selected theater to see such attractions.

A spokesman for the industry, Arthur R. Taylor, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, states that he does not oppose pay television as a legitimate competitor if it operates independently of over- the air-television.

But he argues that the programs which cable television now transmits over its wires to gain entry into the American household are not its own but those of free television.

Cable TV does perform a valid service by giving better reception to some areas, says Taylor, "but the local - origin programs they are telecasting lack any mass audience appeal and the system would serve a better purpose if they put on specialized attractions, which most of them don't."

The pay TV people counter that the only way cable TV can become profitable, and therefore be able to bring viewers extra channels and diversified programming, is to offer top movies and sports events and charge viewers to see them. And, of course, they cannot improve their programming unless they get more subscribers.

It is thus a real "chicken - and - egg" situation.

According to at least one television critic, UPI writer Rick DuBrow, the commercial networks are waging a scarce campaign.

Anyway, he asks, "What is so free about a system that every few minutes? That's a price, and the public pays it — as a captive consumer audience and in terms of mental distraction."

Everyone agrees that cable TV is an important technological advance. In the future, if financially feasible, cable TV will be able to bring 20, 40 or even 100 additional channels into homes.

This means, at least theoretically, that local special - interest groups could air their views on television, entertainment events appealing to limited audiences should be presented and even such benefits as shopping by television would be possible.

The big hitch is money — how it is all going to be paid for, and by whom.

NOT BUTZ ABOUT IT:
LET THEM EAT KASHA

Eight American economists, including four Nobel laureates, have urged that nations hurt by Arab oil blackmail consider a counter- embargo.

It would be more productive, they say, for oil-consuming nations to confer with eath other on such countermeasures as withholding food and manufactured goods "than to outdo each other in subservience which profits them nothing."

According to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, however, the administration considered, and rejected, the idea that the United States cut back food shipments to those Arab nations withholding oil from the West.

One reason, he says, is that it would be ineffective; the Arabs could easily make up the difference elsewhere — probably from the Soviet Union, which harvested record crops this fall.

That may actually be the best argument in favor of a little counterpressure of our own.

The worst possible reason to deny food to the Arabs would be if it caused them real hardship. People can make do with less heat in their homes and less gasoline for their cars, but they cannot do without food. If the United States were to refuse to share its surplus stocks with hungry people, it would inevitably lay itself open to the charge of "genocide."

But today, world grain production is at an all-time high. Let the Arabs scramble a little to find willing exporters. Let them suffer a few inconveniences.

Despite their readiness to accept Russian arms, the last thing the Arabs want is to become totally dependent upon the Soviet Union. Let them worry about that prospect a little bit.

YOUR BLOOD IS NEEDED

As most Americans have never given any blood at all, the record of Mr. Alfred Ross of New York, 135 pints -- nearly 17 gallons -- is remarkable. The white- haired musician has passed his 66th birthday, the cutoff for blood donation of both the American Association of Blood Banks and the American Red Cross. He can give no more, but he hopes that more younger men and women will continue to do so. "Anybody who knows the need for blood will give it," says Ross, who plays the drums with the touring "Disney on Parade" show, "In every city", he adds, "there are children, sometimes whole hospital wards of them, whose lives depend upon regular blood transfusions. They have Cooley's anemia, leukemia, hemophilia and other afflictions."

If four million people between 18 and 66 and in good health, give just two pints a year, all foreseeable blood needs can be met, says Dr. William G. Battaile, president of the American Assocation of Blood Banks. Can you spare two? They may save a life.

CONVERTING THE HEAT TO LIGHT

It was fun while it lasted, the game of "pin the tail on the oil donkey."

Members of the U. S. Senate's Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations took turns in a series of sessions last week grilling representatives of seven major oil companies as the committee began hearings into the fuel crisis and — to use one commentator's phrase — the industry's "oil-gotten gains."

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, for one, accused the executives of using the present conditions of fright and panic "to squeeze out the small independent dealers and some of your own franchisers."

The Connecticut Democrat charged them not only with misleading the people and the government about the fuel situation but of "cheating the American public" by means of tax breaks and other tax-law provisions, such as the depletion allowance.

The time has come to translate all this heat into a little light.

What the oil companies are doing if they are doing it, is either legal or illegal. If it is illegal, the solution would seem to be relatively simple.

If it is legal but undesirable, then it would seem to be the course of wisdom to leave off castigating those who are disadvantaged by the laws and begin looking to those who framed the laws in the first place.

If the oil industry is enjoying unwarranted benefits from the tax laws, then change the laws. If the depletion allowance is a bad thing, then let's get rid of it entirely or revise it so that it serves the purpose for which it was intended — encouraging the development of new petroleum sources.

"The facts are," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., as he opened the hearings, "we do not have the facts."

Well, get the facts, gentlemen, and then bring them before the American public.

1,439 FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEES

There are now no less than 1,439 federal advisory committees, employing about 4,400 tax- paid staff members. It takes a massive 995- page index prepared by the Library of Congress just to list all the committees and their members.

Setting up a committee to study a problem is often a politician's favorite answer to those pressing him for a solution to it, although the reports of these committees are rarely acted upon. Operating almost completely out of touch with Congress and the President, when they do present serious proposals they are often unacceptable. For example, President Johnson flatly rejected the report of his National Commission on Urban Problems (cost $1.5 million), while President Nixon just as firmly refused to accept the reports of his Commission on Obscenity and Pornography (cost $1.8 million) and his Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence (cost $1.3 million).

In 1973, Congress passed a law to deal with the proliferation of these advisory committees by setting up another committee!

Most of these committees are immortal, though they may not meet for years. For instance, the Commission on Standardization of Screw Threads was formed in 1918 for one year's work. It got two three- year extensions and is still in existence, along with the Dance Advisory Committee, the Board of Tea Experts and a review committee on laxatives.

If our people would come to realize that no real problem is ever solved and most are not helped by appointing a federal, tax- supported committee, we might be on our way to cutting the number of federal commissions down to reasonable size. HLH

THERE IS NO NEW NIXON

WASHINGTON — I received a call the other night from a former White House aide whom I'll call "Deep Toes." He said he had to meet me right away and he gave me the address of an abandoned garage in Chevy Chase.

When I arrived he took me over to a wall and we sat down on the hard cement. He lit a cigarette.

"I got something very important to tell you "

"What is it?" I said excitedly.

"You know you've been writing about the New Nixon and Old Nixon for the last five years? Well there is no New Nixon and there never was."

"You've got to be kidding. I saw the New Nixon with my own eyes. The whole country saw him in 1969, 1970, 1971 and even 1972."

Deep Toes shook his head. "It was the old Nixon with make-up on. We dyed his hair, powdered his cheeks and put him in new suits. We had everybody fooled. You were the biggest patsy of all. Any time we fed you something on the New Nixon you ate it up. We couldn't believe you'd be that stupid, but you were."

"Whose idea was it to put out the story there was a New Nixon?"

"Chuck Colson and John Dean cooked it up between them. They figured if they were going to resort to a lot of dirty stuff in Nixon's second term, it would be better to do it in the name of the New Nixon rather than the Old Nixon. You see, people would have been very wary if they thought the Old Nixon was running for office."

"What a damn fool I was," I said, hitting my head against the cement wall. "Was the President in on it?"

"Of course he was in on it. He played along with the whole thing. When he was in public he was the New Nixon, but when he talked to us privagely he was the Old Nixon, cuss words and all."

"He sure did a good job," I said. "He could have gotten been for Watergate."

"What do you think the coverup was all about?" Deep Toes said.

"The President wasn't worried about national security or the Plumbers operation or Daniel Ellsberg. He was worried that Watergate would reveal that the Old Nixon was running the country. If it had come out before the election, he would have had a very tough time defeating George McGovern."

"I suppose so. But what proof do I have that there was no New Nixon, except for your word?"

Deep Toes lit another cigarette. "Who do you think cooked up the tax deductions, the real estate deals with Bebe Rebozo, the milk fund business? Only the Old Nixon knew how to deal with those problems."

"I forgot about that."

"Have you read the transcripts? Does that sound like a New Nixon? The Nixon on those tapes was the guy who shafted Jerry Voorhis and Helen Gahagan Douglas. When you hear them, you won't have any doubts about who has been running the country for the last five years. Look, don't feel bad, you weren't the only one who thought there was a New Nixon. Even Hugh Scott believed it until a few weeks ago."

"I guess you're right," I said. "But why are you telling me all this? This stuff could blow the President right out of the water."

Deep Toes took a drag on his cigarette. "I'm getting back at Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, the guys on The Washington Post who broke the Watergate story."

"What do you mean?"

'They promised that if I leaked the Watergate details to them they would see that Robert Redford would play (ital) me (unital) in the movie. Now it turns out Redford is going to play Woodward. So I figured from now on, if I have anything good, I'm going to leak it to you. When you break the story that there never was a New Nixon, it's going to make Woodward and Bernstein look like a pair of incompetent so free about a system that

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Nixon to Aides: 'Worst is Over'

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has told aides that he believes the national outrage over the White House transcripts has died down and that he has now weathered the worst of the storm.

Sources privy to the President's private conversations say he feared for awhile that the crescendo of criticism might become overpowering. He felt the demands for his resignation, which came pouring in from Republican leaders and conservative newspapers, were "hysterical."

Ironically, the President credits Democratic leaders with abating the storm. He had frankly expected them to join in the clamor for his resignation, he has confided. Instead, House Speaker Carl Albert, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Senate Democratic whip Robert Byrd spoke out against resignation and broke the momentum.

This had the dramatic effect, the President told aides, of lawmen calming a mob at the jailhouse door.

Nixon is grateful to the opposition leaders for preventing Congress from becoming "a runaway grand jury" on the eve of the impeachment hearings. He has confidence that the responsible leaders of Congress will now keep the impeachment proceedings on an even course.

VIETNAM SPENDING: The Vietnam war may have disappeared from the front pages, but the American taxpayers are still financing South Vietnam's military effort.

Two unreleased studies disclose that the United States is now paying 86 per cent of the cost of maintaining the Saigon regime and that it may aid for the rest of this century.

President Nixon is asking for $2.4 billion in military and economic aid for Saigon for the coming year. This amounts to 32 per cent of the total U.S. aid for the entire world. Counting Laos and Cambodia, the embattled peninsula will get close to half of all U.S. aid.

The studies were conducted by the Indochina Resource Center, a private research group which keeps a close watch on Southeast Asian affairs, and by NARMIC, a project of The American Friends Service Committee.

South Vietnam's economy, warn the studies, "in the manner of a heroin user, is addicted to American aid." They quote a confidential World Bank study, which concludes Saigon will still require $770 million a year in 1980 and $300 million to $450 million in 1990. Looking beyond 1990, the World Bank claims "Saigon will continue to remain highly dependent on foreign aid."

In short, the studies contend that the Saigon government is an "artificial state," kept afloat mainly by the generosity of the American taxpayers.

The biggest drain on the South Vietnamese economy, charge the studies, is corruption. "Certainly more than a few (Saigon) subjects are millionaires or nearly so," the documents state, and "there are probably several hundred" who together could pay the government's bills "each year for a decade hence."

These South Vietnamese profiteers are able to escape heavy taxation. Consequently, state the reports, "indigenous Vietnamese tax revenues have not any time in the last decade produced more than 15 per cent of the total resources spent to 'sustain' the CLOSING COSTS: Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., has been trying to lower real estate closing costs, a racket that costs the homebuyers $14 billion a year.

But he has been outmaneuvered in the backrooms by Sen. Bill Brock, R-Tenn., the handsome banker's son who seems to take his signals from the counting houses.

As private correspondence between the two antagonists show, Proxmire thought he could bring his subcommittee around to forcing the Housing and Urban Development Department to crack down on closing costs.

But Brock wanted to take this power away from the government, leaving homeowners to the tender mercies of title companies, title searchers and insurers, real estate lawyers and others who profit from high closing costs.

Brock offered some reforms in a double play that would also strip the government of its authority to regulate closing costs. Enticed by the reforms, even such consumer men as Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., and Bob Packwood, R-Ore., supported Brock's maneuver.

Meanwhile, in the House, Rep. Leonor Sullivan, D-Mo., was so upset over a parallel move by Rep. Robert Stephens, D-Ga., to fleece homebuyers that she wrote personal letters to members of the House Banking Committee. "It would be extremely unwise," she pleaded with them, to accept the Stephens measure.

Don't Break A Leg:
See New Union- Hospital Costs Contracts Soon Driving Room Rates to $300 Daily

NEW YORK-- Last November the voices of Cesar Chavez and the late Martin Luther King, Jr.'s widow, Coretta, were raised here at the founding convention of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees. Today, exactly 15 years after the first massive hospital strike in the land, that union's husky local affiliate is pounding the table, demanding what appears to be a $100 million increase in wages and fringes during a one-year contract with the 50-member League of Voluntary Hospitals.

Doing the pounding and raising the banners of the famed New York Local 1199 is its oft- virulent president Leon Davis who also heads the national organization created last November.

There will be loud cries of another strike-- such as the one which shut hospitals down here for a week also last November.

It all got ugly last winter. The union was fined $600,000. Its 10 officers here hit for $123,500. These have not yet been paid. Words on the picket lines, as doctors, nurses and supervisors struggled to keep the medical institutions alive, were uglier.

Now the showdown is set for contract's end-- midnight June 30. There's history in the making for many reasons. Before these negotiations are over we'll know whether wage-fringe increases shaved from a union contract by the old Cost of Living Council (COLC) can be re- demanded and whether the hospitals, or any management for that matter, can be forced to pay. The COLC and all its powers are dead. Who's to prevent anything?

We'll also know how soon the daily cost of a hospital's double (semi- private) room here will spring from an average $170- 185 to a range of $200 to $220.

And how close this nation will be getting to a $300- a-day room.

It's obvious that when President Nixon talks of an average medical cost of $110 daily he hasn't been back to New York for a long time.

There are some hospitals here where one can get the "simplest kind" of treatment and care. But even Golda Meir wouldn't send Syrian President al- Assad to one of these rooms.

What's critical here is what develops during Leon Davis's bargaining with the voluntary league which is made up of such hospitals as Columbia-Presbyterian, St. Luke's, Mount Sinai and others. There will be rippling effects in the four million- employe health industry-- the nation's third largest-- in which fiscal '74 billion.

Davis's national union has contracts with hospitals in 14 states and the District of Columbia.

"Obviously New York will greatly affect goals and standards outside (New York) to shoot for," says one of Local 1199's (Drug and Hospital Union, AFL-CIO) top strategists.

Hospital workers here are the nation's highest- paid service employes. A special study being prepared by management will claim that the hospital attendants, many of them unskilled albeit many are hardworking, earn an average of 18 per cent more than manufacturing employes in this area.

There is agreement that nurses' aides. "technicians," porters, et al, earn from $151 to $179 (reportedly the average) for a 37 1/2- hour week.

Now the union has gone "Oliver" in traditional militant fashion. First it wants the hospital league to increase the pay and pensions by the amounts cut by the COLC. This would provide a higher base pay. Then would come the negotiations for a new contract.

To put the union's signature to a renewal Davis and his high command are asking, first, for a $25- a- week wage increase. Or 15 per cent, whichever is higher.

And that's just for a one-year pact. He wants wages increased every three months-- amounts to be adjusted to the increased Consumer Price Index rise. Also four weeks vacation after one year. Five weeks after five years.

Retirement on half pay after 25 years employment. Full pension vesting after 10 years. Accumulated sick leave to be paid on retirement in addition to one week's severance pay for every year worked.

There's much more, including what would virtually become a closed shop. Today the hospitals must go the union's hiring hall for workers. They must be supplied in 24 hours or the institution can hire from the open field. Now Davis wants a seven- day period except in emergencies. This would give the union a chance to pull in proposed employes from across the land.

Leaders of the voluntary (non- profit) hospital league claim some hospitals will have to close. Some constantly run multimillion- dollar deficits. Davis shouts for a "living wage" for his people.

Whatever happens here, the institutions had better prepare "shock treatment" rooms for the rank- and- file citizen. Meaning no disrespect to my good friend David Rockefeller who unhappily fractured a thighbone in Taiwan the other day- he'll be the only one who can afford it if this spiral

JERUSALEM (AP) Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today he plans to offer his own compromise proposal aimed at breaking the Syrian-Israeli deadlock over troop limitations on the Golan front.

As he spoke, tank and artillery fire boomed along the front and Israeli and Syrian planes attacked each other's positions on the rocky plateau. The Syrians claimed knocking down three Israeli jets, but the Tel Aviv command said all its planes returned safely.

"We are considering whether approaching the issue of thinning out forces with an American proposal might help matters," Kissinger told newsmen after meeting Israeli leaders for nearly three hours.

Information Minister Shimon Peres said Kissinger was contemplating a middle of the road proposal, which he declined to spell out. But he said the secretary's idea was "a bridging proposition which would take into consideration the particular sharp sensibilities of both sides."

Kissinger introduced an American initiative last week and won both side's approval of a truce line.

A senior U.S. official said Kissinger would return to the Syrian capital later today or Saturday, hoping to wrap up an agreement separating the two countries' hostile armies in the Golan Heights.

Either way, the official said, Kissinger will go home on Sunday—the 28th day of his marathon shuttle diplomacy mission.

The official said Thursday night that Israel and Syria were "considerably closer" to agreement on thinning their forces than they had been 24 hours earlier.

He said the progress came after Kissinger offered suggestions privately to Israeli Premier Golda Meir and later to President Hafez Assad of Syria in 4½ hours of talks.

Kissinger also reportedly made progress on determining the size of the United Nations force that will patrol the thinned-out regions and a buffer zone between the armies. A cease-fire line reportedly already is set.

"It is my judgment that we have made good progress in the negotiations," Kissinger said at a luncheon in Damascus. "Even if we should for some reason not complete it in this session, we will surely bring it to a successful conclusion in the near future."

There was speculation that other U.S. negotiators might remain behind to keep talks going.

At the luncheon, which Kissinger gave for Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam and other Syrian officials, Kissinger described a separation of Israeli and Syrian forces as "a first step" toward a "just and permanent peace" in the Middle East.

While Kissinger was in Damascus, Israeli politicians signed a coalition agreement guaranteeing that Premier-designate Yitzhak Rabin will head a new government and have a twoseat majority in the Israeli parliament.

To be included with the ruling Labor alignment are the Independent Liberal party—a traditional government partner— and the Citizens Rights Movement, which supports dovish Arab policies and has worked for women's rights.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said he would not serve in the new coalition.

Judge says Nixon could not authorize break-in WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said today President Nixon lacked the authority to authorize the break-in at Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office and that Nixon gave no specific directive permitting the break-in.

But the judge gave permission to the five men charged with conspiracy in the case—including two former top Nixon aides—to seek material from the White House and indicated he might dismiss the case if they didn't receive what was necessary for a fair trial.

Gesell said that if material evidence is suppressed after a specific demand from one of the defendants, "the court will use the full range of its sanctions, including dismissal if necessary, to insure that defendants will receive a fair trial."

Gesell made that ruling shortly after denying a defense request for a change of venue or delay in the trial for at least a year.

Those decisions came about two hours before the judge's firm deadline for a White House response to two subpoenas.

U.S. oil trade up for April

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a 43 per cent increase in petroleum imports, the United States had a trade surplus of $92.8 million during April, the government reported today.

The April surplus followed a trade deficit in March of $171 million, the first deficit in nine months.

Both the quantity and cost of petroleum imports were up sharply during April, reflecting the end to the Arab oil embargo and the much higher prices that oil-producing nations are demanding.

The Commerce Department said the nation paid a record of $2.4 billion in April for imports of mineral fuels, almost all of it petroleum, compared with $1.7 billion in March.

Imports by quantity totaled 192.5 million barrels, up from 161.1 million barrels in March.

Ann Landers

Radiation from TV takes time

Dear Ann Landers: Last weekend my husband and I went to a dinner party in a suburb about 30 miles from our home. We couldn't get our regular babysitter, so we let her provide a 16- year- old substitute whom she described as "very reliable."

When we arrived home at about 2:00 a.m., the sitter and our 11- month- old child were asleep on the floor in front of the TV.

When we woke her up she was embarrassed and apologetic. The baby was sleeping so soundly she didn't even wake when we put her in her own bed. My husband was very upset. He said it's dangerous for young children to spend several hours in front of the TV because of radiation.

Is this true? Please check and let us know.-- Concerned Parents

Dear Parents: It would have to be an old color TV and a person would have to sit very close to the set day after day in order to get enough radiation to be harmful. For several years, federal regulations have made it mandatory that all color TV manufacturers enclose the picture tube in a lead- type glass shield.

TV might be harmful to a child's eyes, however, if he consistently sits too close to the screen, and there can be some radiation from a defective set, so sitting close, as a regular habit, should be discouraged.

Dear Ann Landers: You must lead a pretty sheltered life, kiddo. I refer to the letter from the woman whose husband grabbed at her night and day, made suggestive remarks in front of the children and so on. She felt such behavior belonged in the bedroom. Someone else wrote to say a husband who behaves like that probably isn't getting much in the bedroom either.

You agreed that such a wife should "put herself out a little," even if her carnal appetite didn't quite match "Randy Andy's."

Now, back to your sheltered life, Ann: Don't you know that there are men who appear to be very respectable and polite, even courtly, but are bearcats behind closed doors? There is no such thing as "enough" for these animals.

I was married to an insatiable lecher for seven years and finally my doctor advised me to divorce him because he was a sex fiend. So why don't You wake up and smell the coffee?-- Free And Thankful

Dear F. And T.: I'm awake and the coffee smells delicious. That advice was for the millions of people who have approximate normalcy. I didn't get the impression that the woman who wrote was married to a sex fiend. When she called him "Randy Andy," however, I had a sneaking suspicion that she might be "Frigid Brigitte."

Dear Ann Landers: I felt sorry for those parents who had to watch their gluttonous Ph.D. son heap enormous portions on his plate and then finish everybody's leftovers. Small wonder he was 120 pounds overweight.

That man's problem is the same as alcoholism, only his weakness is food instead of drink. I had the same illness and learned how to arrest it through Overeaters Anonymous. We find out what's eating us that makes us overeat. I lost 80 pounds in the program and gained my self-respect and peace of mind.

The address of the national headquarters is: Overeaters Anonymous, 2365 Westwood Blvd. No. 25, Los Angeles, Calif. 90064.

Thanks Ann. You might change a lot of lives today.-- New Me.

Dear You: Since Overeaters Anonymous has a strong religious tie- in, it might not work for everyone. But I've heard from readers who swear by it. Thanks for writing.

Caring for your new baby

Colds not unusual in first year

XVII. Common Problems and Worries — Part 3

(EDITOR'S NOTE:) This is another in a series of 18 articles presented by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to describe things about normal babies that commonly worry parents. The articles should answer many questions about what to expect of a new baby and give simple instructions about solving problems that most parents face during the baby's first year of life. This last section of articles deals with common problems and worries that arise after the first few weeks at home and that might continue on after the first year.)

Sucking

Most babies get their thumbs and fingers in their mouths and suck on them. Many seem to find it especially enjoyable and do it often. It causes no harm and can be ignored.

Some mothers don't like the looks of thumb and finger sucking and substitute a pacifier for the thumb. This also is fine, and the pacifier can be thrown away toward the end of the first year. But don't substitute the pacifier for the attention, food, or diaper changes that your baby wants and needs when he is crying.

Crossed Eyes

Your baby's eyes should look straight at you when he is awake and alert. One may turn in or out slightly when he is particularly tired, but both eyes should work together almost all of the time. If not, seek medical advice at your baby 's next checkup. Don't be fooled by a wide nose which may make the eyes look as if they are turning in.

Frequent Urination

Most babies urinate nearly every hour until they are two or three months old, every two or three hours for the rest of the first year and will sometimes urinate two or three times in a very short period. But if your young baby never seems to go more than half an hour without urinating or your older baby seldom goes more than an hour, if he strains very hard to urinate, or if he always urinates in a weak trickle or very tight stream, you should tell the doctor about it at the next checkup.

Colds

Many babies have a slightly stuffy, rattly noise in their noses nearly all the time. This is not a cold, it just seems to be the way they are made. It will become less and less noisy and noticeable as he gets older, the air passages of the nose get larger, and he learns to clear his nose by sniffling.

Don't use a lot of cold remedies with such a baby. You may be able to reduce the noise by sucking out his nose several times a day with a small rubber bulb called a nasal syringe.

Most babies will have two or three real colds in the first year, although a perfectly normal baby may have eight or nine.

With a cold he will become a little fussy and lose part of his appetite. His nose will start running with clear watery material which will later become thick and sticky. His eyes may look red, he may cough frequently and make a lot of noise when he breathes. He may have a fever. The cold may last four or five days, or two or three weeks, and if a cough starts it may continue as long as four or five weeks.

Neither you nor your doctor can do much about it except keep your baby as comfortable as possible. If he seems uncomfortable with aches and pains, give him half a baby aspirin three or four times a day. Use the nasal syringe to clear his nose when it bothers him. A mixture of honey and lemon juice given one teaspoon every four hours will do as much good for a cough as many fancy cough medicines.

When you should worry - If he seems very weak and sick, has no energy to even cry loudly, nurses poorly, doesn't want over half of his usual bottle, doesn't wake up to be playful for even a short time -- then you should seek medical care quickly.

How sick he acts tells much more about how seriously ill he might be than anything else. If he has a high fever and a cough, but takes some of his bottle eagerly and wants to play, you don't have to worry. But if he is listless, weak, uninterested in attention, play or his bottle, you should get him to a doctor quickly.

If he has labored breathing you should have him checked. This means he has to work so hard at breathing -- getting the air in and out -- that he has no energy left for anything else, even for his bottle or playing. Making a lot of noise breathing is not important, but having to work very hard to breathe is!

If he cries and moans as if in pain for several hours while he has a cold, you should get him checked by a doctor. If he is just fussy and goes to sleep after you comfort him or give him half a baby aspirin, you needn't worry. But painful cries shouldn't be ignored.

You will probably want to check with a doctor the first times your baby has a bad cold, but you will soon learn what to expect with his colds and how to treat them.

You really can't do much to prevent a cold. Colds are most contagious -- most easily passed from one person to another -- during the few days before the signs of a cold appear. Once a person has had a cold for a few days, he is no longer likely to give it to someone else, so staying away from a person with signs of a cold will not help much.

The return of the garter belt?

According to a recent Associated Press article, the garter belt is back in fashion in such cities as Paris, France...so it was decided to do a survey of Sikeston stores to see if any of the younger generation was asking for the dainty lingerie items to "keep in step".

Of 11 stores checked for the garter belt, nine store representatives said their firms don't even keep the item in stock, although a couple said the item could be ordered by catalog.

One store owner said she does not stock garter belts, but would order some if she had requests or if a new trend hits the Midwest. Her personal opinion is that the garter belt is sexier than pantyhose and that with the coming of more dresses and feminine wear, the garter belt may well regain its place in the lingerie assortment.

The other two stores reported garter belt sales had declined for the past three to four years. "Sales used to soar," one saleswoman commented," but with the age of pantyhose, we sell very few...just to the old customers (not young) who prefer the garter belt."

A spokesman for the other store still carrying them said many were sold on "doctor's orders" for women who had leg problems of some sort.

So...the women in Paris may be "oohing and aahing" over the newest nostalgia wave, but in the Sikeston area women are sticking to pantyhose.

The following Associated Press article, by John Vinocur, tells how things are going in Paris:

PARIS (AP)— For those worried about La France Eternelle and her somber position on the Common market, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and other grave subjects, take heart: the soul of France is still eternelle.

The garter belt is back.

Returning are the days of one knee gently crossing another, an inch or less of flesh flashing at a stocking top. After a decade of domination, the pantyhose conspiracy is trembling in its socks.

Stockings and garter belt sales are up 20 per cent in Paris this spring, especially among women 17 to 25, according to industry figures. And a small boom is expected by fall.

"It's fine news," said Antoine Blondin, a popular French writer who has campaigned against pantyhose. "The first thing I give a woman I love is a garter belt.

"There's nothing more desert- like than pantyhose- no contrasts- and nobody visits a desert. The garter belt on the other hand is like a James Bond weapon. The thigh encircled the arrow of the garter, the little bit of promised land between the panty and the stocking. It's as beautiful a design as the Parthenon."

The origin of the fashion is apparently the nostalgia wave of the 1930's and movies in which actresses like Jacqueline Bisset looked nicely evil in stockings and a garter belt.

"It's obviously erotic," said Jacques Matalon, a spokesman for the stocking industry. "Why describe it any other way?

"The production of garter belts was almost stopped when the kids began asking for them. The industry has geared up— it doesn't represent much of an investment— and now we'll see. It may not last more than a season or two. Although men will encourage their women to wear them, we've found out that mostly women don't give a damn about what men think in terms of fashion. So this is something that young women like."

Matalon said the fashion seemed to be making inroads in Britain, but that the United States was still mired in the pantyhose era. In fact, he said American stocking manufacturers with large stocks have been inquiring about selling them off on the new French market.

Blondin, a serious writer who recently had a page one commentary on the French presidential election in the newspaper le Figaro, is completing a book on the garter belt.

"Between Brigitte Bardot and an insignificant little girl in a garter belt and stockings, there would not be a second's hesitation for me," he said.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Lazy parkers irk a shopper

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know if there is anything that will take OLD tea stains out of a linen tablecloth. They remained after it was washed. — A.B.C.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with healthy people who are too lazy to take a few steps to the door of a shop but have to park right in front even if it is a no-parking zone. They do not care about blocking traffic or keeping trucks from unloading. If they are too lazy to walk from the parking lot they should stay at home. I wish stores had meter maids to give them tickets. Maybe then they would park in the lot and stop blocking traffic.

Other Pet Peeves are salespeople who will not take "No" for an answer and telephone salespeople are the worst. Then, too, there are those people who expect their mail and newspapers to be delivered to the door in all kinds of weather but will not even bother to clean a path in the snow for deliverymen to walk on. I thought there was a law that said people had to clean off their walks. — MARTHA.

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Eva who spotted her doubleknit dress with fabric softener. This can be removed. Wet the material and rub the spots well with that almost 100 per cent pure white soap. This takes time and work but worked for me on an entire pants suit. — LYNETTE.

DEAR POLLY — Eva who poured fabric softener on a knit dress and had spots all over it should first rub all the spots with a detergent and then wash it in the machine with an all-purpose bleach that is used for colored clothes. It may have to be repeated a few times but they should come out. — BELLE.

DEAR POLLY — The maker of a well-known washer also says that if undiluted fabric softener is dropped on fabric it may leave colored spots but the fabric should not be damaged and the spots can be removed by rubbing with a liquid detergent. Rewash, using chlorine bleach IF safe for the

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Writer

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — "I feel beautiful. I'll never slip back to being fat," Shirley Turner said Thursday as she revealed that her jaws had been uncemented, ending a six-month slimming ordeal.

Doctors and dentists had installed a silver clamp to hold her teeth together last November to stop her insatiable nibbling and it was removed Wednesday, the 36-year-old housewife said.

Mrs. Turner, mother of two teen-age daughters, lost 101 pounds through the liquid diet she was forced to follow, dropping from 247 pounds to 146.

She said she still hopes to reach her "bikini target" of 136 pounds by the time she and her family go on vacation at the end of June.

"I know it," she said. "I'll never eat bread and potatoes again in my life."

"I would smile if I could, but it hurts too much," she said "You have no idea how tender my jaws feel after six months being jammed together."

Doctors at Nottingham General hospital decided to remove the clamp after Mrs. Turner complained of agonizing pain in her locked jaws last week.

"The pain was red hot, my face felt swollen, I couldn't sleep," she said. "It appears that the silver plate holding my jaws together had slipped and was setting up an infection."

The doctor who examined her at the hospital said, "I think you've had enough."

An upper and bottom silver plate had been cemented to her own teeth and locked together by a clamp. The plates had been taken out for cleaning once or twice during the six months but she was not finally freed of the contraption until Wednesday.

Its removal took 45 minutes and she said, "It was murder."

What did her husband, himself a hefty 210-pounder, say when his wife told him her jaws were free.

Mrs. Turner forced a tiny smile and replied, "He said it was about time."

Children may have mistaken sense of what money is

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

BENTON — "Money can't buy happiness, but it sure helps," is a cliche often used. Phrases like: "Money talks", or "almighty dollar" impress children and often gives them a mistaken sense of just what money is.

As a parent or teacher or club leader, you'll probably want your child to learn how to use money wisely and to have a good attitude toward it.

Learning about the proper use of money and other resources begins at home. Within limits parents still do more than anyone else to mold the attitudes of their children. Of course, the TV media, his friends and your friends also have some influence, but your example is still prime factor in his attitudes.

It isn't enough to talk about intelligent money use. Children react to what they see and feel in the home.

A complaint of many young people is that society is too "materialistic." There are many things we can have and enjoy without spending money, but perhaps we've failed to communicate this to our children. Perhaps we've been overly concerned about our social position, believing that it depends solely upon our income. Keeping in mind the positive side -- what we can do with our money, rather than what we can't do will help to keep our own attitudes pointed in the right direction.

You reinforce your teaching when you meet your child's needs for love. Just as emotionally deprived adults sometimes spend money as a substitute for affection, so do children. Insecurity and anxiety may lead children to overvalue possessions, especially money.

No two children are alike, so no two use money the same way, and your chief purpose will be to guide him in handling it wisely and to weigh values so he can make intelligent choices. According to a finance specialist, children who beg for extras or spend allowance unwisely learn the financial facts of life if they aren't over-indulged.

When extra money always appears for some "special thing," children figure money will always turn up from the inexhaustible well. Indirect experiences in money matters help children understand family income. For example, explain that a new battery or small house repair costs as much as a new bike.

Let him spend money, give him experiences in using money. For small children, it may be putting money in the meter, paying paper boy or buying a stamp to send his letter. An allowance helps them develop pattern and philosophy of spending.

Mistakes shouldn't be emphasized, because choice making isn't learned in one effort.

Set some limits on what a child has to spend at first, so that a mistake in judgment won't be a catastrophe.

Helping children develop the money management skills they need in a consumer-oriented work is a serious responsibility and one that should be approached with humor, understanding and common sense.

Judge Koss Blomeyer ordered Taylor's parole term extended for one year under supervision, after hearing a recommendation from the Department of Probation and Parole.

Cases continued until June 6 included Connie L. Parris of Puxico, possession of marijuana and an apparatus used in smoking marijuana, and Doyle Ray Parks of Bloomfield, nonsupport.

A nonsupport charge against Carlin Joe Walker of Bernie was continued until June 27.

April food prices decline

By MIKE WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers saved 38 cents a week on food in April from March prices the Agriculture Department says, but two congressmen say the savings could have been higher if meat packers stopped hoarding beef.

Reps. Frank Benholm, D-S.D., and Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., said Thursday there is a record stockpile of 476 million pounds of meat in cold storage, 37 per cent higher than in 1973.

"We have a situation here that is wreaking havoc not only upon the American consumer but also upon the farmer. They are being cheated by those packers who are hoarding meat in cold storage warehouses and not releasing it into the marketplace," Wolff said at a news conference.

"A decline in food prices will remain only wishful thinking if market manipulation of this sort is allowed to continue."

"The consumers can scarcely pay more and certainly producers cannot take less," Denholm said. "The abnormalities of present circumstances are intolerable. The secretary of agriculture must do more to represent the interests of both the consumers and producers."

An Agriculture Department spokesman said he doubted if he would call it hoarding, but he said, "We think the pipeline ought to be cleared .... There's meat in the pipeline. While meat prices have declined a bit, they are nowhere near the drop at the farm level."

Relief from high food prices promised by the administration translated into a 1.1 per cent decline in retail prices of farmproduced food from March to April, the USDA said Thursday. It said that meant a $20 drop in a year's supply of groceries for what was called a typical 3.2-member household, or a savings of 38 cents a week.

The decline is the first since October.

Fewer dying at slower speeds

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Reinforced with statistics showing a significant decrease in traffic fatalities, Col. Sam S. Smith of the state highway patrol has said Missouri's 55 mile-an-hour speed limit will continue to be "vigorously enforced."

"Members of our department arrested more than 11,800 drivers and warned over 11,000 other motorists during April," Smith said Thursday.

A decrease of 202 fatalities has been recorded so far this year compared with 1973, he said, attributing much of the drop to lower speeds.

"This is a better life-saving record than the national average, which shows a 25 per cent reduction in traffic deaths for the first three months of 1974," the patrol superintendent said.

With insufficient patrolmen to thoroughly monitor drivers across the state, he emphasized the need for voluntary compliance with the new limit "to prevent the fatality and accident rate from increasing in the remaining months of 1974."

Gov. Christopher S. Bond, who has already been asked to seek a raising of the limit by Senate President pro tem William J. Cason, D-Clinton, continues to favor the lower speeds because "the energy problem is still with us.

"You've got to consider the fewer auto fatalities," zbond added. "We know there are inconveniences, but the public has got to get used to the 55 mile-an-hour limit."

The governor said he would consult with state public safety and transportation officials before determining whether to seek lifting of the new limit, imposed March 4 under threat of withdrawal of federal highway funds.

Information office disbanded

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The public information arm of the executive branch of Missouri state government is being disbanded, as reports earlier this week indicated it would be.

The official announcement of the demise of the Missouri Information Service was made Thursday by Robert L. James, state office of administration chief.

Legislative rejection of the proposal to consolidate certain information, photography and graphics functions into one unit that could reportedly have saved $77,000 annually prompted the action, James said.

Also creating a problem for the service was the addition of new responsibilities to the office of administration under state reorganization coupled with severe staff limitations, he added.

Two or three positions in the information office will be eliminated he said, but of the four full time staff members, two will remain in the office of administration to handle public information duties while the other two will be transferred to other departments.

The service had distributed news releases and made available tape recordings on the executive branch. James said the broadcast tapes will continue through June.

LEAC moves to head off cut

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council, bolstered by written assurances from the legislature, has moved to head off a threatened cut of federal anticrime funds to the state.

Robert C. Gruenfelder, LEAC executive director, said written assurances from members of the House-Senate Fiscal Affairs Committee indicating it wants the program continued prompted the council to approve implementation Thursday of a plan to enable it to increase its staff from 33 persons to 43, meeting federal requirements.

The plan would require each of the 19 regional law enforcement units in the state to provide the council, which administers about $13 million in federal funds, with local matching funds in proportion to the federal money each region receives.

According to Gruensfelder, Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood, a member of the committee, has stated in writing to one of the regional directors that the LEAC program should be continued. Gruensfelder said he has also been verbally assured of that stance by the committee chairman, Rep. Clarence Heflin, D-Independence.

The program was placed in doubt earlier this week when council officials told the Fiscal Affairs Committee they would not implement the matching funds plan if the committee rejected it. The legislators took no action on the proposal and Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, LEAC president, said the council took that to mean tacit approval.

"We're out of the woods now," Danforth said following the council action.

The funding plan, which will go into effect in July, will provide LEAC about $30,000 needed to augment a reduced state budget for the coming year of $26,500.

Without the additional money, Gruensfelder has said the staff would have to be reduced to 20 persons, and the federal government has said anticrime funds for the state would be halted if that happened.

A member of the fiscal affairs staff, Gruensfelder said, has been assigned as liaison to LEAC by Heflin in an apparent attempt to prevent future misunderstandings like the one which led to the latest crisis.

TYPISTS' SALARIES INCREASED IN '74

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Salaries for typists increased during the first quarter of 1974 but secretaries' salaries remained steady, according to a continuing survey by Western Temporary Services Inc.

Senior typists earned an average of $2.82 per hour during the first quarter of 1974 in the 11 cities surveyed.

Ashcroft reveals campaign spending

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — John D. Ashcroft, candidate for state auditor, has spent nearly $17,000 on his campaign, an audit report by Arthur Young and Co. of Kansas City shows.

The report, released by Ashcroft's office Thursday, showed that from Oct. 1, 1973 to April 24 of this year Ashcroft received $22,649.93 in contributions, spent $16,790.97 and has a balance of $5,858.96.

Ashcroft, a Republican, was appointed state auditor in 1973 by Gov. Christopher S. Bond, the former auditor.

Ashcroft's contributions totaled 830, averaging $27 apiece.

The biggest contribution from an individual was $500 from John Olin of Clayton. The smallest was a quarter mailed by Olive Roberts of Independence.

The largest contribution was $2,425.23 by Citizens for Accountability in Government of Springfield.

The biggest expenses were more than $2,000 for postage and $9,294.40 for consulting fees and expenses of Ashcroft's campaign manager, John Lichtenegger.

Ashcroft says he will make public three more edit the primary election day Aug. 6, Sept. 30 and again on the general election day, Nov. 5.

Admiral Poe reassigned

BLOOMFIELD — Rear Admiral Donald T. Poe, U.S. Navy, son of Lloyd Poe of Bloomfield, has been reassigned from his current duty as deputy director of operations in the Defense Communications Agency in Washington to commander in chief of U.S. Forces in Europe located in Stuttgart, Germany, where his assignment will be as director of communications-electronics.

Prior to attending the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., Admiral Poe graduated from the Bloomfield High School in 1940 and attended Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau for one year. He graduated from the Naval Academy in 1944 with a bachelor of science degree and was commissioned as an ensign.

Admiral Poe is also a graduate of the U.S. Naval Post Graduate School at Annapolis, the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va., and the National War College in Washington, D.C.

He received a master's degree in international affairs from Washington University. He also served as a senior research fellow in the strategic research group of the National War College.

Poe's past duties have included destroyers and cruisers in the Pacific and Atlantic and several shore assignments in Washington, primarily in communications duties.

Admiral Poe is married to the former Helen Drumwright of Norfold, Va., and they have two daughters, Sue and Jeri.

Lilbourn collector resigns

LILBOURN — Mrs. Ruth Newton, Lilbourn city collector, has submitted her resignation to that office, effective June 7.

She has held the office for several terms and was re-elected in the April 2 election. She and her husband plan to go to Meridian, Miss., to assist their son Bob in his business there.

An election will be held probably on July 2, to fill the unexpired term of the office. Final plans for the election will be made at the regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen on June 6, according to Mayor Bill Tope.

Miss Jackie Garner has been employed to work in the office until it is filled at the election.

Dunklin landfill will not open by deadline

KENNETT — The Dunklin County Court said Thursday it will notify cities in the county that the county landfill system will not be operational by June 30 and cities should take necessary steps to seek an extension to continue operating their city dumps.

The county and cities face a deadline of June 30 to comply with a law requiring the governing agencies to implement a plan for solid waste management to be filed with the Missouri Division of Health.

A legislative attempt to delay planning for another year was turned down.

Meanwhile, the County Court is awaiting an engineer's report on the landfill site, which was purchased earlier this year on Crowley's Ridge near Campbell, which will be used as the depository for all county trash.

Presiding Judge Armon Harrison said the court would notify the cities that the landfill could not be ready for operation by the deadline date, thereby allowing the cities time to file a request for an extension to continue operating open dumps until the landfill is finished.

Guard to train in Kansas

CHARLESTON — Three units of the National Guard from Charleston will train this summer at Fort Riley, Kan., from Aug. 2-18.

The 1140th Engineer Battalion, HHC, including companies A, B, C and D from Cape Girardeau, will train at Ft. Riley Aug. 17-31.

Vote on ambulance district set

KENNETT — No opposition was voiced Thursday at a public hearing on a proposed county ambulance district plan, and the Dunkin County Court set the proposal for a vote on the August primary ballot.

Presiding County Court Judge Armon Harrison and Associate Judges John Scott and Ralph Stropp said a vote on that date would save the county the expense of calling a special election.

County Clerk Bill Horner said a simple majority was required for passage of the matter. Twelve persons attended the hearing, which was set after a petition was presented earlier.

Lilbourn man to head retired teachers club

C. D. Wright of Lilbourn was elected president of the SeMo Area Retired Teachers Association at an organizational meeting Thursday in Sikeston Activity Center, 201 S. Kingshighway.

Membership in the newly formed unit of the National Retired Teachers Association is composed of retired teachers in Scott and New Madrid counties.

Mrs. Ruth K. Elkins of Springfield, NRTA state director, explained health and welfare benefits available to members and stated there are 8,000 members in the state.

The next meeting is scheduled at 10:30 a.m. June 27 in Sikeston Activity Center. Retired teachers in Scott and New Madrid counties who are interested in joining the association are invited to attend.

Watch . hat happens...

Your family, like most, is experiencing a little pinch with the high cost of living. Your idea has been to round up a number of items around the house that you no longer need, but which you know would be valuable and useful to someone else.

And your idea now is to call the Classified Department and place an ad offering these items for sale.

Now . . . watch what happens!

In a day's time you'll begin receiving phone calls from people interested in buying the things you no longer need. And before you know it, you'll have that little extra cash in your hand we can all use.

That's exactly how it happens to lots and lots of homemakers . . . every day!

SOME HAD NEVER SOLD A THING

This isn't as strange as it seems. We are among the most successful companies in America because of our interest in the person and not a specific background.

An outstanding line of industrial products, a large and growing market, and our commitment to training has helped our salespeople to average $20,000 annually in earned commissions. They are backed by a drawing account up to $300 weekly and an excellent fringe benefit package.

If you have an outgoing personality, a receptive mind, and the ability to express yourself to people like yourself, you may be able to realize your selling potential. Most essential, is your desire to grow financially and personally in direct proportion to your own efforts. Limited travel.

If you fit the above give us a call. We'd like to talk with you about you. Call Gene Pardo (collect) Friday, May 24, after 9:00 A.M., or Saturday May 25, 9:00 A.M. to 12 noon, (314)-727 6546, St. Louis, Mo. If unable to call, write today.

through revenue bonds. Spradling said the port authority could build a facility for a business with revenue bonds for six or seven per cent instead of the current 11 to 12 per cent. That attracts industry, he said.

The port facilities will attract industry for another reason and low- cost transportation, Spradling said. He said it costs less to ship a bushel of wheat down the Mississippi River from St. Louis to Memphis, than it costs to mail a letter.

Another meeting is expected to be held June 12 or 13 at Ramada Inn with County Court judges, city officials and government officials to begin working out the mechanics of establishing the port authority.

Curl, Player Memphis leaders

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — South African Gary Player admits he's looking beyond the Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic to the U.S. Open three weeks from now.

Rod Curl is looking no further than the local weatherman.

"If it gets windy, if the wind comes up real good and blows hard, I've got a good chance of winning," Curl said Thursday after matching Player's course record 65 for a share of the first-round lead in this $175,000 event.

Curl, the diminutive Wintu Indian who scored his first career victory last Sunday in the Colonial National at Fort Worth, Tex., birdied his last three holes for a seven-underpar round on the 7,193-yard Colonial Country Club course.

"Hey, a man could get used to this in a hurry," the 5-foot-5 Curl said. "It's a wonderful feeling."

He and Player, the current Masters champion who's eyeing an unprecedented Grand Slam of golf, shared a one-stroke advantage over a group of four— two-time 1974 winner Hubert Green, Jim Colbert, Larry Ziegler and Bob Wynn—tied at 66.

Dave Hill, the defending titleholder and a four-time Memphis champion, was in good position at 67—two shots behind— as the touring pros took advantage of ideal playing conditions to post exceptionally low scores.

Lee Trevino, however, blew to a double bogey seven on his last hole and was eight shots back at 73. Many of the game's glamor names are skipping this event sandwiched between two "designated tournaments," events in which they must compete.

"The thing that's on my mind," said Player, "is the Grand Slam, winning those four tournaments."

The Grand Slam consists of a one-year sweep of the Masters, U.S. and British Opens, and the PGA. It's never been done. Only four players have won all four in a lifetime—Player, Nicklaus, Ben Hogan and Gene Sarazen.

Many observers feel a one-year sweep of the four is nearly impossible.

Fog spoils Pitt shutout

The Pittsburgh Pirates couldn't handle Steve Rogers' smoke ... but even Steve Rogers couldn't handle Montreal's fog.

The Expos' hot-shot righthander was mowing down the Pirates with ease Thursday night—six strikeouts with one walk and two hits in five innings—while his teammates were building a 3-0 lead for him.

None of the men on the Bucs' bench could cope with the Montreal flamethrower on the mound in the early going.

So the Man Upstairs stepped in.

In the top of the sixth inning, a dense fog which had been hovering over Jarry Park suddenly descended. And with its help, Pittsburgh finally got to Rogers.

With two outs and Ed Kirkpatrick on first base, Al Oliver hit a towering but playable fly ball to left-center field ... or toward it, at least. It disappeared when it left the infield.

It finally reappeared, falling between outfielders Willie Davis and Boots Day. And by the time they retrieved it, Kirkpatrick was crossing the plate and Oliver was on third.

That was enough for home plate umpire John Kibler. He halted play for 56 minutes, waiting for the mist to clear. In the interim, the fans were entertained momentarily by a streaker who bounded over a railing, cavorted around the infield, then raced to the outfield ... and vanished.

In the only other National League games, San Francisco edged Los Angeles 7-6 and San Diego nipped Cincinnati 5-4 in 13 innings. The Chicago Cubs' game against the Mets in New York was rained out.

Giants 7, Dodgers 6

Reliever Elias Sosa picked up his fifth triumph without a defeat this season, riding San Francisco's four-run seven inning burst to victory. Dave Rader's run-scoring single capped the rally.

Padres 5, Reds 4

Derrel Thomas drove in three runs including the game-winner with a 13th-inning sacrifice fly that gave the Padres their victory over the Reds Thursday night.

In the American League, California beat Kansas City 3-1, the Chicago White Sox whipped Texas 9-6, Milwaukee downed Detroit 7-3 and Cleveland silenced Baltimore 2-0.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Leading first-round scores Thursday in the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic:

Ryan beats Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nolan Ryan of the California Angels still has his whammy on the Kansas City Royals.

The Angels rocked the Royals 3-1 Thursday night as Bobby Valentine broke a 1-1 deadlock with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly.

The St. Louis Cardinals were idle.

Ryan, who hasn't lost to the Royals since 1972, pitched a four-hitter. Kansas City scored first when Amos Otis singled and John Mayberry doubled in the sixth inning.

Bruce Dal Canton's knuckle ball held the Angels to two singles, but his control slipped in the seventh and he walked the first two batters, Paul Schaal and Ellie Rodriguez. They moved up on Dave Chalk's sacrifice, and Joe Hoerner replaced Dal Canton, 2-2.

Mickey Rivers singled Schaal home, and Doug Bird replaced Hoerner. Denny Doyle was walked intentionally, filling the bases. Then Valentine hit his long fly, scoring Rodriguez.

Rodriguez drove home the third run in the eighth.

The Chicago White Sox move into Kansas City tonight with Stan Bahnsen, 5-3, starting against the Royals' Paul Splittorff, 4-4.

St. Louis scheduled Sonny Siebert, 3-3, against the Cubs' Rick Reuschel, 3-2, at Chicago this afternoon.

POPLAR BLUFF — A matchup of last seasons finalists, Kansas City Pem-Day and Illmo- Scott City, highlighted the opener of the Class A state baseball tournament here today. KC claimed the championship last year at Springfield.

Today's champions battle Saturday afternoon at 1:30 for the state championship.

Optimist, Leible win Sr. openers

The Senior Babe Ruth baseball season got underway at VFW stadium Thursday night with the defending co-champs, Optimist and Leible, posting wins.

Leible opened with a 5-0 shutout of the Elks while the Optimist took Security National 6-3.

League action resumes Tuesday with Leible Implement battling Optimist at 6:30 and Security National facing the Elks at 8:30.

Golf plans

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Plans for the 11th annual Missouri state junior boys golf tournament here on the A. L. Gustin Jr. course are being finalized, Don Faurot said today.

The tournament, co-sponsored by the Mizzou athletic department and the Missouri Golf Association, will be held in Columbia on August 3-4. Faurot is secretary- treasurer of the state association.

Any contestant between the ages of 14 and 18 is eligible for this 36- hole tournament. College students who are enrolled in college before May 1, 1974 are ineligible for participation.

Trophies will be awarded to the winner and runnerup in each age group -- along with first and second place trophies in the championship flight, and a four- man team trophy.

Entry blanks are being mailed out this week to high schools with golf teams, and to country clubs.

Record meet

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — The California Relays, a track meet with as much promise as a national championship, puts world records in jeopardy Saturday.

Rarely have their been as many challenges in one program.

The classic race of the night figures to be the mile, in which North Carolina's Tony Waldrop faces perhaps his strongest challenge of the year when he runs against five sub-four-minute milers.

Waldrop, who has run nine consecutive sub-four-minute miles this year, is the overwhelming favorite but the winner may well be close to Jim Ryun's world mark of 3 minutes 51.1 seconds.

The newest world record holder, Ivory Crocket, puts his 100-yard dash title of "world's fastest human" on the line against Steve Williams and Tennessee's Reggie Jones. Crockett, the former Southern Illinois University flash, rocketed to a 9.0 clocking two weeks ago at Knoxville, Tenn., and is favored. Other world standards under assault Saturday night are the shot put, 440-hurdles and two women's records, the mile and half mile.

Mary Decker, recovering from a tonsilectomy, still was able to run the women's 880 in 2:04.6 last week at Bakersfield.

New Zealand's Sue Haden, who has run 800 meters in 2:02.0, will provide the opposition as Miss Decker, of Garden Grove, Calif., aims at the world 880 record of 2:02.0.

Francie Larrieu of the Pacific Coast Club goes after the world record in the women's mile, a time of 4:29.5 set last year by Italy's Paola Pigni.

Debbie Heald, former world indoor mile record holder from La Mirada, Calif., clipped off a rapid 4:22.7 time for 1,500 meters last week at Bakersfield and will provide competition for Miss Larrieu.

George Woods, who became the first man in history to surpass 72 feet in the shot indoors last March, aims to break the outdoor world mark in the vent. Woods' teammate, Woods is capable of wiping out the outdoor mark of 71-7.

In the mile, Waldrop, whose 3:53.2 makes him the second fastest American ever, faces stiff tests from front-running Paul Cummings of Brigham Young, who has run 3:56.4 this year, and Tommy Fulton, another pace setter. Waldrop likes to race from behind, as does Mark Schilling of San Jose State and Rick Brown of California.

For the past four years Bill has been serving as a dental technician in the United States Coast Guard. He coached his Coast Guard team to second place in the 12th Naval District.

He graduated from high school in Troy, Missouri and attended York College in York, Nebraska, and the University of Missouri in Columbia. He graduated with a B.S.E. from Northeast Missouri State in Kirksville, Missouri, in 1969.

Garvey writes WFC

PORTLAND (AP) — Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Association, has written to veteran players on World Football League rosters regarding the formation of a players association for the new league, a spokesman for the WFL's Portland Storm said Thursday night.

"It is not beyond the realm of one's imagination to think that the WFL and NFL are already considering a merger," Garvey says in his letter, dated May 17, "and we must move quickly to make certain that the rights of players are protected."

The letter offers use of the NFLPA staff and asks WFL players to sign a statement giving Garvey the right to act as their bargaining agent.

DON BUDGE "Grand Slam Winner"

'Fly' ruled ineligible

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Austin Peay's James "Fly" Williams, one of the country's top five basketball scorers during his first two years of college, apparently won't be playing next season because of someone else's mistake.

Williams, who averaged 27.5 points a game last season and 29.5 two years ago, was declared indefinitely ineligible Thursday for intercollegiate competition because the Ohio Valley Conference had misinterpreted NCAA entrance requirements.

"He's being punished for the mistake of someone else," Austin Peay Athletic Director George Fisher said. Fisher blamed OVC Commissioner Art Guepe, and Guepe accepted the responsibility.

"Someone has to take the rap on this and it might as well be me," Guepe said.

Fisher said Williams entered school after taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test. The results of that test were converted, under guidelines designed by the conference, to project Williams' American Collegiate Testing score, he said.

This conversion of test scores, he said, was outlawed by the NCAA in April 1969.

Fisher speculated that athletes at the seven other OVC schools will face the same situation as Williams.

Williams, a 6-foot-5 forward from Brooklyn, N. Y., was not available to newsmen Thursday but issued a statement through Austin Peay assistant coach Lenard Hamilton.

He said he plans to return to Austin Peay this fall and has written to the National Basketball Association and requested that his name be removed from the hardship list.

He said earlier this week he had rejected a $1.5 million offer to play for Denver of the American Basketball Association.

Brewers make Milwaukee famous

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Brewers most famous these days in Milwaukee are the ones that play baseball, not make beer.

Long known as the stronghold of suds, Milwaukee's cup suddenly is running over in the American League East pennant race.

"Pressure is what baseball's all about—and we have a team that can keep the pressure on," said Milwaukee's George Scott after a 7-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers Thursday. "We have guys who can run, guys who hit for average and guys who hit for power. We should keep the pressure on all the time."

Particularly, Milwaukee's racehorse style has caught the fancy of the hometown fans. The Brewers have literally raced into first place in the East race with a running game.

Against the Tigers Thursday, the Brewers stole a club record five bases and had 11 in the four-game series, which they won, 3-1.

In Thursday's other American League games, the Cleveland Indians blanked the Baltimore Orioles 2-0; the California Angels beat the Kansas City Royals 3-1 and the Chicago White Sox stopped the Texas Rangers 9-6.

Scott's bloop triple capped a two-run seventh inning rally that lifted Milwaukee over Detroit. Indians 2, Orioles 0

Gaylord Perry pitched a three-hitter and George Hendrick singled home the only run he needed, leading Cleveland over Baltimore.

Both Cleveland runs off Jim Palmer, 2-5, were unearned with Hendrick's sixth-inning single snapping a 21-inning scoreless string for the Indians.

Angels 3, Royals 1

Bobby Valentine hit a bases loaded sacrifice fly in the seventh inning, scoring Ellie Rodriguez and capping a two-run rally that gave Nolan Ryan and California its victory over Kansas City. White Sox 9, Rangers 6

Carlos May, Ed Herrmann and Ron Santo provided the key hits in three different rallies, leading Chicago over Texas.

Texas slugger Jeff Burroughs hit his 11th homer of the year to drive in his American League-leading 46th run of the baseball season. It also marked the 10th straight game in which he has driven home a run, leaving him one short of the major league record shared by Babe Ruth and Mel Ott.

National League scores: Montreal 5, Pittsburgh 4; San Francisco 7, Los Angeles 6 and San Diego 5, Cincinnati 4 in 13 innings. Rain washed out the game between the New York Mets and Chicago Cubs.

Country fans like horns

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "I remember when they used to tell me 'Country people don't like horns and pop people don't like country music.' But I knew I had a good idea. I just knew I did," Danny Davis remembers.

It was six years ago that Danny first assembled the Nashville Brass. But the group had been alive for seven years before that as a dream he couldn't sell.

For seven years, the story goes, Danny would stand up in RCA board meetings and tell other company executives he wanted to put horns in country music. And for several years, they laughed.

It was the RCA joke.

Davis came to this country capital as the RCA executive in charge of the Nashville product. It was here he met Chet Atkins, a man not bound by old taboos. Atkins said "Try it."

In October of 1968, Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass produced their first album. Within three months, the factory was wondering where all the records had gone.

So much for history.

"I guess you can just chalk it up to Irish tenacity," Danny remarked with a smile.

Definitely Irish, he's an oddity in country music. Born in Randolph, Mass., "I came up through the jazz era, during the days of the Big Band sound. When I came here, I was an executive and thought my days of performing were probably over," he said.

"One thing we try to do on stage is entertain that audience. I expect a musician to be an entertainer. I put the show together so the guys can project their personalities and be individuals."

The men in the Brass don't seem in any hurry to leave. Only three of the original group have left Danny in the six years they've been together.

Danny puts together one of the livliest, funniest and most sophisticated shows to come out of the Music City. He modestly calls himself a "half-way comic," but he manages to avoid the country cornball brand of humor.

There are three doctorate degrees on his stage; four have masters' degrees. "Then there's Curtis McPeake, the banjo picker, who can't read music," Danny laughs.

"The musicianship is embarassingly high," he says.

But Davis keeps the melody pure.

"I think one of the reasons the Big Bands died was because they sophisticated themselves right past their audience," Danny explained.

"Everybody loves instruments ... pure, beautiful music. Do you realize that if Irving Berlin were alive today and brought a song like "I'll Be Loving You Always" to a publisher.

Cars keep him busy

In his own words, A. B. (for Andres Booker) Dixon of 4517 Given is "just a country boy who came to the Big City and made good." From a farm at Dell, Ark., to the used car and battery market of Memphis, he came. And when someone applies that old saw "Would you buy a used car from this man?" to A. B. Dixon, the answer would be "Yes."

A. B. Dixon's office is just an ordinary used- car- and- battery- type office: A concrete floor, battered desk and an ancient green-beige sofa, an electric heater in a corner, a sign or two on thywall ("Make me an offer I can't refuse"), a faded picture of Christ in Gethsemane, a calendar and a string of car keys.

A man walked into the office.

"You know that battery you let me have last week?"

A. B. Dixon looked a bit nonplused. "No," he said, "fill me in."

"Well, you let me have it and this morning it wouldn't work . . . just went Arrr-arrrrrr."

"You got it with ya?"

The man had it out in his car. A. B. Dixon went and got it and gave the man a new battery, no questions asked.

A. B. Dixon was born in Walnut, Miss. (his father, Buford Dixon, still lives there), and moved to Dell, Ark. (between Blytheville and Jonesboro on Arkansas 18). "I grew up there and farmed, cotton and soybeans.

"I was 17 on Pearl Harbor Day (Dec. 7, 1941), the day World War II began, and my wife's (Allene) birthday is Aug. 14, the day it ended. I guess you could say I put down the plow and picked up the rifle. After the war (a Navyman in the South Pacific) I put down the rifle and picked up the plow again."

After 29 years on the farm, A. B. Dixon came to Memphis: "I guess more or less because I wasn 't making any money on the farm ... maybe I was just tired of it."

He went to work for Oakley Ford and then eventually into business for himself.

'Brother Bob' (Ingram), a deacon in the Berclair Baptist Church, as is A. B. Dixon, came in, needing a battery for his truck. A. B. Dixon took time out to put the battery in the truck, and then Brother Bob joined in our yarn swapping. He was planning a trip to Grenada, Miss., to visit his parents.

Then I asked A. B. Dixon, "Have present conditions affected your business?"

"So far, no. I haven't changed prices since June 1, 1970. About the only thing I've done is to add lawnmowers."

Once A. B. Dixon had some gasoline pumps in front of his office, but they disappeared some years ago.

USDA sticks to wheat prediction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is sticking to an earlier prediction of a record wheat crop this year, and reports of dry weather in parts of the nation's breadbasket are causing only mild alarm among government grain watchers.

No revision of 1974 wheat production estimates will be issued by USDA until June 10 when the Crop Reporting Board makes new estimates for a variety of crops.

Meanwhile, a weekly weather report showed Tuesday that "hot, windy weather lowered topsoil moisture to a short supply" in many areas of the central and southern Great Plains. That is the region where winter wheat, planted last fall, is moving rapidly into harvest pipelines.

Nixon administration officials are counting heavily on a record wheat crop this year to help cool off food prices by making more grain available for export and domestic use. A record corn crop also is predicted, but actual field estimates will not be ready until August.

Another report on Monday, a summary of a forthcoming wheat situation analysis, reiterated earlier optimism. It also noted that wheat prices have dropped sharply, mainly in anticipation of the big harvest expected this summer.

Further market flurries occurred Tuesday, with Kansas City cash wheat dropping to $3.40 to $3.75 per bushel range. That represented a big decline from a peak of $6.20 per bushel for winter wheat delivered to Kansas City last Feb. 25.

The weekly report said winter wheat was in satisfactory condition in central and eastern Kansas, but added that topsoil moisture — needed for final development — was short in the western one-third of the state.

On May 8, the department estimated the 1974 winter wheat crop at a record of more than 1.6 billion bushels, up 27 per cent from last year. The Kansas crop, which normally accounts for one-fifth of more of total U.S. production, was estimated at a record 406.8 million bushels.

The Kansas estimate has been protested by some authorites in the state as being much too high in view of poor growing conditions in major parts of the area. But USDA officials say no revision will be made, if any, until the June 10 report is ready.

Officials said in this week's weather summary that the Kansas wheat crop as of last weekend had developed ahead of last year, with 75 per cent of it headed, compared with 25 per cent at the same time in 1973. Wheat harvest usually starts in south central Kansas in early June.

The report also said wheat and oat harvest in Texas gained momentum and that the first cuttings had been reported in Oklahoma.

Wheat in Nebraska was in "good to excellent" shape as of the weekend, the report said, although moisture was short in the western half of the state.

Energy crisis reason for post office change

CHARLESTON -- Tentatively, beginning June 22, the Charleston post office, which currently dispatches and receives four loads of mail a day, will send and receive only two loads a day.

Mail is currently delivered to the Charleston post office at 6 a.m. and 3 p.m., and dispatched from Charleston at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Under the new system, the 11 a.m. outgoing and 3 p.m. incoming mail dispatches will be ended.

A small portion of Charleston's mail will be affected. Those customers holding post office boxes may have to wait until the next morning for mail that now comes with the 3 p.m. delivery to Charleston.

"The receipt of mail in the afternoon is about 90 per cent advertising," said Charleston Postmaster E. R. Putnam Jr. Putnam said the ending of the 3 p.m. delivery to Charleston would affect fewer than 100 pieces of first-class mail a day.

No residents should be affected by the ending of the 11 a.m. dispatch from Charleston.

"The mid-morning dispatch of mail that comes to Sikeston doesn't go out until evening any way," said Donald Pasaka, sectional postmaster at the Sikeston post office. Since both current dispatches of mail from Charleston leave the Sikeston post office at the same time, mail service from Charleston to other areas will not be slowed, Pasaka said.

"Basically, the reason we are going to this is to conserve energy," Pasaka said, adding that the move was part of a national program.

Pasaka said the June 22 date was set as "tentative" because some of the "star" routes — postal routes contracted out to private individuals — are being eliminated and, consequently, consolidated into larger routes. The rebidding of contracts and paper work involved in consolidation could consequently affect the date of the postal service change Pasaka said.

Spiritism Has Big Following In Brazil

By ELAINE DE ABREU

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Spiritism — a religion that believes in clairvoyance and reincarnation — is active in this South American country. But Brazilian mediums are critical of U.S. spiritualists who charge money for seances.

"Mediums should always work for free," said Reinaldo Soares Pinheiro, general secretary of the Sao Paulo Spiritist Federation. "The Gospel says that mediumistic powers are given free. But we know that some mediums in the United States charge for their services."

Insurance consolidation may save schools money

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) -- Officials of state-supported colleges and universities told a special subcommittee of the Missouri Legislature Thursday that in some cases a savings can be made by consolidating insurance policies of the various schools.

"If we could get a policy that suits all the needs," said Bob Peace, business manager of Southwest Missouri State University, "then from what I know about insurance, you could be able to reduce premiums by consolidating the risks."

Peace told the subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee that policies covering fire and automobile insurance, bonding requirements, general liability and workmen's compensation insurance could be most easily consolidated.

"I think the need for some flexibility would remain on policies where you need a particular kind of coverage for a short term," he said.

Dale O. Bowling, vice president for business management at the University of Missouri, told the committee the university had not been notified about the possibility of consolidating workmen's compensation coverage through the state and was consequently spending nearly $350,000 annually for that coverage.

Bowling said, however, he felt it was conceivable that a savings on the workmen's compensation premium could be realized through consolidation by the state.

"We are interested in doing anything that will save the state money," he told the committee.

The committee heard officials from the state schools today and had scheduled testimony by the State Division of Insurance and the attorney general's office for Friday.

"We want to work with the university people to ascertain if we can save the state some money in the insurance program," said committee cochairman Clarence Heflin, D-Independce.

Burlison defends system

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In commencement addresses this week, Missouri 10th District Rep. Bill D. Burlison staunchly defended the American two party system of government.

Burlison was commencement speaker at Meadow Heights High School in Bollinger County, Mo., Thursday night and at Jefferson Junior College at Hillsboro in Jefferson County, Mo., on Friday.

Although the American style of democracy has been developed by the two- party system he said the system is now struggling for survival. "To succeed, each party must have a substantial nucleus of dedicated adherents. This support is disappearing," Burlison said.

In quoting surveys by Dr. George Gallup since 1940, Burlison traced the growth of independents from an initial standing of 20 per cent of the electorate to its present strength of 49 per cent. The same surveys show the Republican party going from 38 per cent to 14 per cent and the Democrats from 42 per cent to 37 percent

In challenging the students to participate in government and more particularly in a political party, the Cape Girardeau congressman concluded, "I happen to be among those who believe in the two- party system and feel that it has helped to make America great ... We trust that you will do your part in nurturing this system. I assure you that we, and the nation, will be grateful."

Wootens return to First Assembly

First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway, has announced the return of the Rev. and Mrs. Loren Wooten as their pastors.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Wooten previously came to Sikeston in 1953, and it was under their leadership that the present auditorium was erected. The Wootens resigned in 1959 to assume the pastoral responsibilities at Berea Temple (Assembly of God) in St. Louis.

During the intervening years, he has served as assistant district superintendent of the Southern Missouri District and has been involved in overseas evangelism in the Samoan Islands and the Philippine Islands.

The Wootens returned to Sikeston after three years of full- time evangelistic work which took them to many parts of the country for revival crusades.

Last Sunday was Welcome Back Sunday at First Assembly. After the morning service, a fellowship dinner was held in the basement of the church.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Wooten will live in the church parsonage at 200 Hardin St.

Film planned Sunday at Oran First Baptist

The latest film from World Wide Pictures, producers of "Time to Run," will be shown once beginning at 7:30 p.m.

"Isn't It Good to Know" was edited and directed by Michael Hooser, a young 26 year - old filmmaker who brings provocative new techniques to his first major film. Using a varying number of images on the same screen, Hooser creates a multi-media effect that draws the viewer into the picture. Included are scenes from the Dino De Laurentiis production of "Barabbas", through the courtesy of Columbia Pictures.

Lutheran loyalty rally set June 2

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A meeting billed as a Lutheran loyalty rally has been scheduled June 2 on the Lincoln University campus here, a spokesman for the Concerned Laymen of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod said today.

He said the rally will support the church's orthodox position in the conflict that has resulted in most students and faculty members leaving the campus of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, the synod's largest seminary.

Most students began a walkout Jan. 21, one day [illegible] Dr. John Tietjen, the school's president, was fired by the Board of Control. Most of the school's faculty followed the students in the walkout, and the dissidents have set up a socalled seminary-in-exile at St. Louis University and the Eden Theological Seminary in St. Louis.

Dr. Tietjen was dismissed after being accused of allowing the teaching of false doctrine at the Seminary.

The featured speakers at the Jefferson City rally were expected to include the Rev. Robert Sauer, assistant to the president of the synod; Eugene Fincke, a senior member of the Board of [illegible] St. Louis; Rev. Thomas Baker of University City and the Rev. Walter Hoffman of Olivette.

Similar meetings have been held in other parts of the country where the Missouri Synod has churches.

Singing event set Saturday

The United Quartet of St. Louis will be featured on a gospel singing program at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Pentecostal Holiness Church, 328 W. North St.

Local singers will also participate in the program, according to the Rev. Freeman Parker, pastor.

Scripture: Acts 25-26

WHEN IS A MAN REALLY FREE?

One of the most discussed and misunderstood words used today is "freedom." Our courts are required to define this word frequently and in most of their verdicts disagreements follow.

"The only freedom which deserves the name is that of pursuing our own good in our own way, so long as we do not attempt to deprive others of theirs, or impede their efforts to obtain it."

Thus wrote John Stuart Mill in 1859. Yet Plato wrote many centuries earlier that, "The excess of liberty, whether in states or individuals, seems only to pass into excess of slavery."

And today's lesson from Paul concerns this conflict between freedom and slavery. One term can better be understood in relationship to the other.

Many debates on freedom today revert to President Franklin Roosevelt's famous 1941 talk when he called for four freedoms for all persons: freedom of speech and expression, freedom of worship, freedom from want, and freedom from fear.

Three decades later the world has fewer freedoms than it had in 1941. The United States still provides more freedom for its people than most nations.

Paul warned the world about such problems. He learned about slavery in the physical sense, yet he could preach about the freedom of the soul if one only believed in God.

Paul was arrested and held in captivity in three cities (Jerusalem, Caesarea, and Rome) for five years. Still he never wavered in his faith and never sought favors of the authorities.

The greatest asset Paul possessed was his faith. His message was simple, based on repentance, faith, and good works. He told and retold his message.

Always Paul defended his ministry. He reminded the Jews that it was all in accordance with Moses and the stories of the prophets. And he always returned to his own conversion to Christ's preachings.

Paul attempted to prove to the people that sin produces slavery. To be freed from this bondage, one need only turn to God. Paul believed those who rejected God were in bondage to spiritual ignorance and indecision.

Freedom here is the power to do what we want to do. Paul exercised his right of freedom by repeating his message each time he was arrested. When hauled before King Agrippa, Paul used the court as a sounding board. He spoke before the entire audience and in most cases the local authorities shifted the responsibility for handing Paul to the authorities in Rome.

Even then there were those who placed greater stress on the legal angles, less on the spiritual. In most instances Paul's case seemed hopeless since he had become the political hostage of his day.

Threats exist today that endanger our freedoms. Some fear that computers are making decisions for us. We admit the need for some restraints, such as laws controlling or driving on highways. Still we acknowledge the fact that there are millions of people held under some form of bondage today.

For a fuller discussion of freedom and bondage one needs only to turn to the plight of many small nations, the American Indians, racial minorities, and other groups in our society.

These people cry for freedom.

Paul cried for freedom too.

Paul showed the way through our love for God, believing that our love begets love in return. Many persons have practiced such love and have achieved love in return.

We fight wars to gain freedom. Paul's method was simpler. Believe in God, give Him your love, and your soul will be free.

THE BIBLE

136. Saul Grows Jealous of David

David's heroic defeat of Goliath spurred the army of Israel to a great victory over the Philistines. As the victors returned, the women came out singing and playing tambourines and cymbals. However, their song irritated Saul: "And the women answered one another as they played, and said, Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands." (I Samuel 18:7)

Saul was displeased because he feared that next the people would make David their king. From that time on, Saul kept a jealous watch over young David. On the next day David came in, as he usually did, to play the harp to soothe Saul's troubled feelings. Saul, who held a spear in his hand, threw it at David, aiming to pin him to the wall, but David leaped aside and escaped. He also avoided a second spear hurled by Saul. Consequently, Saul grew even more jealously afraid of David.

"Therefore Saul removed him from him, and made him his captain over a thousand: and he went out and came in before the people. And David behaved himself wisely in all his ways; and the Lord was with him." (I Samuel 18:13-14)

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, May 24, the 144th day of 1974. There are 221 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1625, the director of the Dutch West India Trading Co. bought Manhattan island from the Indians for goods worth $24.

On this date:

In 1819, Queen Victoria of Britain was born in London.

In 1830, the first passenger railroad in the United States began service between Baltimore, Maryland and Elliott's Mills, 13 miles away.

In 1844, Samuel F. B. Morse transmitted the first public message by telegraph — from Washington to Baltimore.

In 1883, the Brooklyn Bridge in New York was opened.

In 1941, in World War II, the German battleship Bismarck sank the British battle cruiser Hood in the North Atlantic, with a loss of 1,300 lives.

In 1962, Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter became the second American to fly in orbit as he circled the earth three times.

Ten years ago: Egypt announced that the Soviet Union had agreed to extend a loan of $27 million for the United Arab Republic's new five-year plan.

Five years ago: The U.S. Apollo Ten astronauts were headed toward a splashdown in the Pacific after completing man's nearest inspection of the surface of the moon.

One year ago: In Reykjavik, Iceland, several thousand demonstrators smashed windows at the British Embassy to protest Britain's challenge to Iceland's claimed 50-mile fishing limit.

Today's birthdays: Democratic Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas is 65. Folk singer Bob Dylan is 33.

Thought for today: The nearer the dawn the darker the night — Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, American poet, 1807-1882.

The case of the pretty secretary

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Susan was a comely looking secretary who kept up her appearance to keep down her job. Her preoccupation with her makeup, however, proved disasterous.

During a coffee break in the company lounge, and while painting on fresh lipstick with the concentration of a Rembrandt, she became so engrossed with what she was doing that she failed to pay attention to where she was sitting.

The result? Susan slipped off the chair and severely injured her back. Out of work for several months there after as a consequence, she filed a claim for a Workman's Compensation award.

"We'd like to help you," she was told, "but we can't. The accident happened while you were primping up. Since putting on lipstick had nothing to do with your job, you weren't injured during the course of your employment as required."

"Of course primping up was part of my job," insisted Susan. "Looking pretty is part of being a secretary. Psychologically, it makes her work more efficient."

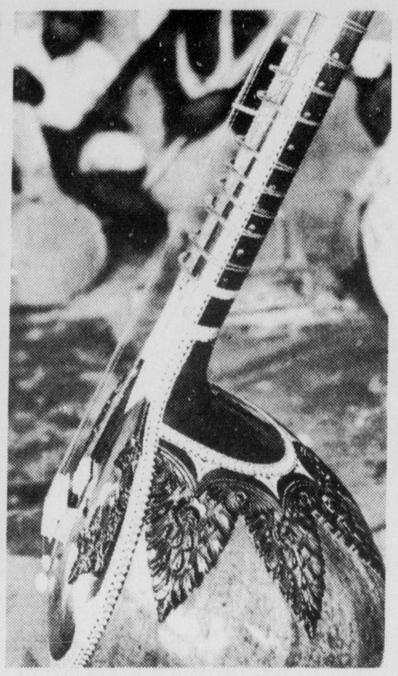
Her claim turned down, Susan took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the pretty secretary to collect a Workman's Compensation award?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that an employe is generally entitled to a Workman's Compensation award if injured while performing some act for the mutual benefit of the employer and employe.

In this case, noted the judge, Susan was injured while performing an act for both her own and her employer's benefit since applying lipstick, in a place provided by her employer, added to her self- esteem and thereby permitted her to perform her job more efficiently.

(Based upon a 1959 Missouri St. Louis court of Appeals Decision)



THE MAKING OF A SITAR, the elaborately decorated traditional stringed instrument of India, begins with something very simple. A craftsman begins the process with dried gourd shells, left, which may have been seasoned for several years. Patience and talent are required for the intricate carving, center, which transforms a gourd into a work of art, right, as well as an instrument.

Orioles at Yankees Will Be Game-Of-The-Week Offering

The New York Yankees, the new faces of 1974 in the American League East, will offer a coast- to- coast TV audience a look at a flock of new players and a different home ball park Saturday, May 25 (1 p.m. CDT), when Major League Baseball's Game- of- the- Week brings together the Baltimore Orioles and the Yankees on the NBC Television Network.

The game, which will be played in New York's Shea Stadium-- the Yankees' home grounds while Yankee Stadium in the Bronx is having its face lifted-- will show the Yankees with 12 players they did not have at the end of the 1973 season. That doesn't include the manager, Bill Virdon, who succeeded Ralph Houk as the top brain in the Yankee dugout.

The notable additions the Orioles will encounter in their first visit this season to Shea Stadium number Chris Chambliss, a first baseman with a busy bat, Lou Piniella, an outfielder with power, and a young shortstop named Jim Mason.

The Orioles, the team generally favored to win the top spot in the American League East, have their usual style, on the mound, at the plate and in the field.

Brooks Robinson, the fanciest fielding third baseman in the last decade of major league play, is back doing business with his accustomed flair.

Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek will do the commentary on the primary game in New York; the backup contest-- St. Louis Cardinals at Chicago Cubs-- will be broadcast by Jim Simpson and Maury Wills.

Monday Night Baseball

May 27 Baltimore Orioles at K.C. Royals

The Baltimore Orioles and the Kansas City Royals, baseball teams with an excellent chance to make it into the League Championship series in October, will clash in a game to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network when Monday Night Baseball resumes May 27 (7:15 p.m. CDT) in Kansas City's Royals Stadium. Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek will handle the play- by- play and color commentary; Joe Garagiola, whose "Baseball World" will precede the game at 8 p.m., will be the Guest Commentator.

Even though it is stretching a point at this stage in the season, the Orioles and Royals have the type of personnel to carry them all the way. Both clubs have rosters with depth, balance and just enough youth sprinkled through the batting order to keep the veterans hustling.

The Orioles have a pair of speedy young outfielders in Al Bumbry and Rich Coggins, along with an established pitching staff headed by Jim Palmer, Mike Cuellar and Brooks Robinson.

The Royals, not quite so well established, made a legitimate run at the champion Oakland Athletics last year and are back with an even stronger team this season. They point to centerfielder Amos Otis and John Mayberry, a slugging first baseman, as the bellwethers of their pennant hopes.

The backup game, to be telecast in Kansas City and Baltimore will match the Houston Astros and the Montreal Expos in Montreal. Commentary will be handled by Jim Simpson and Maury Wills.

Columbo in Sunday Mystery Movie

PETER FALK
Lt. Columbo in 'Columbo'
'NBC Sunday Mystery Movie'
Sundays, NBC Television Network

Peter Falk has good reason to feel proud as he enters his third season as star of the acclaimed "Columbo" series on the NBC Television Network's "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie."

He has won two Emmy Awards. His four Emmy nominations include Best Actor for "The Law and Mr. Jones" in 1961, followed by a 1962 nomination for "Price of Tomatoes" (which he won). In 1972 he was nominated and won the Emmy for his portrayal of Detective Lt. Columbo. This year, he again was nominated in the same category. In addition, he received two Oscar nominations: in 1961 for "Murder, Inc." and in 1962 for "Pocketful of Miracles."

If it weren't for Eva LeGallienne, Peter might never have seriously considered acting. He was employed by the State of Connecticut as an efficiency expert when he decided to study under Miss LeGallienne. He played the title role in "Richard III" at the White Barn Theatre in Westport, Conn., and it didn't take Miss LeGallienne long to recognize Falk's talents. At her urging, he quit his job and went to New York in 1955, determined to become an actor.

In less than a month, he landed the choice role of the bartender in an off-Broadway production of Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh." In rapid succession he appeared in "The Lady's Not For Burning," "Purple Dust" and made his Broadway debut in George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan."

The tough- talking actor holds a master's degree in public administration from Syracuse University. He also earned a B. A. in political science. He attended Hamilton College in Clinton, N. Y., briefly, before a year's tour as a merchant seaman.

Born in New York City, Falk spent his youth in Ossining, N. Y. As a high school student he won letters in track, baseball and basketball. He also emerged as a straight "A" student, was class president for three years and a member of the debate squad which placed second in the state.

Falk likes his "Columbo" commitment of eight shows a season which allows him to perform in stage productions and motion pictures. In 1972 he starred in Neil Simon's hit, "The Prisoner of Second Avenue," on Broadway and won applause from the critics.

About "Columbo," Falk says: "I love the character. He has no pretension, is disarming, preoccupied and has a steel-trap mind." The same words could well be used to describe Falk.

WILLIAM HOLDEN AND VIRNA LISI STAR IN TOUCHING FAMILY TALE, "THE CHRISTMAS TREE," ON "THE CBS THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIES" MAY 30

William Holden stars, along with Virna Lisi, as the torn and troubled father of a dying child, in "The Christmas Tree," to be seen for the first time on television on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, May 30 (8:00- 10:00 p.m. CDT) in color on the CBS Television Network. Brook Fuller appears as Pascal, the child.

While vacationing in Europe, a wealthy widower, Laurent, and his young son witness an airplane accident that fills the atmosphere with radiation. Laurent is saved by swimming underwater, but Pascal is exposed to the poisoning and develops leukemia.

Knowing the boy has only months to live, Laurent and his girl friend Catherine try to indulge Pascal's every whim while at the same time keeping his condition from him. But Pascal knows. His short life becomes a pleasure-filled waiting game for death to come; his father, who gives him everything, cannot give him another life. It is up to Pascal to present one last and loving gift to his father.

ROCK HUDSON
Stewart McMillan in 'McMillan & Wife'
'NBC Sunday Mystery Movie'
Sundays, NBC Television Network

Handsome, broad- shouldered Rock Hudson enters his third season this Fall as the star of the highly successful series, "McMillan & Wife," on the NBC Television Network.

One of Hollywood's top motion picture stars, Hudson is now strongly entrenched in the television industry as well with his portrayal of San Francisco Commissioner of Police Stewart McMillan.

Hudson was born in Winnetka, Ill. He joined the Navy in 1944 and saw two years of service in the South Pacific.

After being discharged, he found work in a Los Angeles electrical appliance shop while he sought entrance to the University of Southern California on the GI Bill of Rights. Failing this, he became a truck driver and established residence in Hollywood.

Determined to become an actor, he had some photographs taken and landed his first small, non-speaking part in "Fighter Squadron." Raoul Walsh, who kept him under personal contract for a year, sold the contract to Universal in 1949.

With a slow build- up, and a long list of credits, he hit the top in "Magnificent Obsession," starring opposite Jane Wyman. The 1955 role won him 14 national and international awards.

A few of the many leading ladies who followed Miss Wyman were Elizabeth Taylor, Lauren Bacall, Doris Day, Arlene Dahl, Anne Baxter, Julie Adams, Barbara Rush, Agnes Moorehead and Ursula Thiess.

"Giant," "Pillow Talk," "Lover Come Back," "Pretty Maids All in a Row" and the soon- to- be-released "Showdown" are a few of the 59 movies he has completed to date.

Hudson resides in a spacious Spanish- style Beverly Hills home (in which he has lived for 11 years). He is the proud owner of a wall- to- wall record collection which includes a vast selection of Spanish music. "I enjoy music, especially Spanish composers-- always have," he says.

Hudson values his privacy and personal friends very highly but is devoted to his fans and public. As a former star- struck kid himself, he says, "In all honesty, I can understand that type of feeling. I know what it's like to stand in awe of an actor or actress."

He is often accused of giving a yes- or- no type of interview which sometimes is mistaken as a dislike for people. "I like people," he says, "But I don't like talking about myself."

An outdoorsman, Hudson enjoys camping and skiing. He also likes to read, play bridge and spend time working in his greenhouse.

Honor The Father

SIDEWALK FILM— MAKING-- BLEAK DAY, BLEECKER STREET

At 11:00 AM on a cold Tuesday in a dusky December lengthening into a wet winter, Bleecker Street between Jones and Cornelia in New York City's West Greenwich Village, an offside remnant of downtown bohemia, flowed with the expected urgencies of daily life. It was death scheduled to be shammed, later.

In one hour and 45 minutes, it would explode raucously, flamingly, in counterfeit, from a fast- moving long black car-- on direction. For now, the lean limo endlessly tracked the two marked victims up and down Bleecker Street, back and forth-- on direction.

Since 9:30 that moisture- charged morning, that direction had stemmed from a tall, husky man wearing a blue- and- beige woolen stocking hat that hugged his forehead, and an oyster- white, three- quarter- length storm coat. Director Paul Wendkos was intently rehearsing his location scenes for "Honor Thy Father," based on Gay Talese's best- selling book about underworld life, being filmed from Lewis John Carlino's script.

To be rebroadcast on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, May 31 (8:00- 10:00 pm, CDT) in color on the CBS Television Network, the film stars Joseph Bologna and Brenda Vaccaro, with special guest star Raf Vallone and Richard Castellano.

From an hour and a half still earlier (no one had advised him of a changed 8:00 AM work "call"), producer Harold D. Cohen had been around the corner, on Jones Street, voluntarily helping a bookdealer flooded out by a burst water main carry to safety his Florentined out- of- prints. At a back table in a Bleecker Street coffee shop sat actor Joe De Santis, sopping up the wet leaves of one book, a choicely illustrated volume on medieval German art.

Down Bleecker, towards Cornelia, a tailor semi-crouched in his shop entrance. Toiling in the shadowless light, he basted away on a coat, Mme. Defarge- like, absently nodding at Wendkos' recurring street trials.

Passersby and bystanders alike were minor figures at practice, most being film "extras" afoot for atmosphere. Area residents remained aloof-- uncurious.

Author Talese stood by, too, outside a salami- strung grocery window across from the Bleecker Street bakery Wendkos had targeted as his action site. Talese was curious-- curious to see how a movie "hit" was made.

Special- effects and make- up men had rigged the chests of the two actors to be gunned down (Henry Ferrentino, Frank Albanese) wih "squibs," small explosive charges loaded with prop blood, connected by wires to eight tenpenny nails hammered into a one- inch pine slab, off camera. Rachet a screwdriver blade down the line and-- Blam!-- in counterpoint.

Virtually no two witnesses were to agree later on the sequence of sights and sounds when, out of nowhere, materialized the previously invisible crowd. Some 200 insistent onlookers rushed in, at gunshot, instantly overwhelming the scene, their stampede presumptuously usurping Wendkos' directorial prerogative to "cut" the action. He none the less had it on film.

At 11:00 AM, however, it was still 105 minutes away from Wendkos' command for "Camera...Action!" Later, with the ebb and flow of the "Honor Thy Father" film company, Bleecker Street, between Jones and Cornelia, reverted to an unperturbed stream of city life.
